JAPS TIGHTEN JAVA PINCERS

Demand Defenses for U. S. Coastlines

SENATORS HIT INADEQUATE SHORE GUARD

Call For Protection Despite Stimson Word It Might Retard Offensive.

MORE ATTACKS SEEN

Leaders Say They Want Only Adequate Strengthening of Coastal Areas.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Three influential senators demanded today that adequate provisions be made for defense of American coastlines.

Senators Walsh (D., Mass.), Byrd (D., Va.) and Johnson (R., Cal.) urged this protection despite an assertion by Secretary of War Stimson that dispersal of forces to halt enemy coastal raids might retard offensives elsewhere.

A concrete indication that such offensives might develop sooner than expected was contained in the latest advices from the Netherlands East Indies.

The army said last night that a formation of 16 American P-40 pursuit planes intercepted 25 heavy Japanese bombers and two fighter planes which flew over Soerabaja, Java, and destroyed five bombers and one fighter. One American plane was shot down but the pilot was saved.

This was the first report of a considerable American fighter force—of squadron strength—in action over Java. It was accompanied by a navy statement that an American submarine had sunk 5,000-ton cargo ship in the East China sea.

But the enemy likewise had news of submarine forays in the Caribbean. New U-boat attacks damaged two ships off Trinidad. However, U-boats failed to set fire to the huge oil refineries on Aruba in another raid and the submarine attacking that Dutch oil port may have been sunk by U. S. bombers.

Secretary Stimson has warned that such attacks might be extended to American shores, but that in the grand strategy of the

Maybe You Won't Get Even Twelve Ounces of Sugar

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—Stricter sugar rationing regulations appeared imminent today, following on the heels of the war production board's disclosure of tentative rationing plans for industrial sugar.

Cuts up to 40 per cent in some industrial uses and restriction of individual consumption to 12 ounces a week may undergo further alteration as a result of unexpected war shipping problems and consequent uncertainty of normal importations from Cuba and other sources.

No mention was made of the possible cuts in industrial rationing plans, but it was indicated officials are planning to reduce the individual consumer's weekly ration to half a pound.

FORESEES BUSINESS DROP

CLEVELAND—(AP)—W. T. Holliday, president of the Standard Oil company of Ohio, advised marginal gasoline station operators to "get out while the getting's good" and work in a munitions plant because business will drop 30 per cent next year.

Expansion of City's Tire Quota Hinted

Complaints Lead to Study of Reapportioning Ohio Allotments.

Possibility that Mansfield's quota of tires and tubes may be expanded in the future was seen today with the announcement at Columbus that state tire rationing authorities are considering reapportionment of county quotas due to shortage of tires for trucking of defense materials.

Eric Ferguson, state tire rationing director, said that trucking companies in Mansfield, Akron, Dayton, Wilmington, McConnellsville, and other points have complained of inadequate supplies of tires and tubes.

James Bailey, Mansfield tire rationing board chairman and Richland county rationing coordinator, wrote to Ferguson several days ago pointing out how the shortage of tires and tubes has hit trucking lines, bus companies, and industrial firms in Mansfield.

"We have 17 trucking lines operating in and out of Mansfield, either operating their own companies or maintaining branch offices here," Bailey said. "I pointed out also to Mr. Ferguson that we have four wholesale grocery firms operating a total of 50 trucks.

"Also there is a great number of trucks operated by Mansfield industrial firms busy with defense orders, and in addition to these there are many buses operating to and from the city. Mansfield's situation is considerably different from other cities that may be just as large, due to the industrial nature of this city."

Ferguson said a state advisory council may be established to aid rationing authorities in reapportioning county quotas. Under new regulations effective yesterday the state coordinator has authority to reapportion county quotas. He may cut quotas of some counties where demand is relatively light to supply counties with heavy trucking activities.

Ferguson said this might be arranged by exchange of passenger tires for truck tires between various counties. He explained that the shortage of truck tires, especially acute in Akron, has developed because the number of trucks in some counties is relatively high compared with the

SHELLED, SUNK

Second Brazilian Vessel Hit By Foe Off Atlantic Coast.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The Brazilian merchant vessel Olinda was shelled and sunk by an enemy submarine off the Atlantic coast, the navy announced today.

This was the 19th attack by submarines off the U. S. Atlantic coast announced by the navy and was the 18th ship sunk. In addition, the U. S. tanker Blum was badly damaged by a mine, of unknown identity.

No further information on the Olinda was released at the navy department. The Olinda was the second Brazilian vessel lost in three days.

LOVE-SLAYING JURORS PICKED

Prosecution To Charge Woman Shot Man Who Gilted Her.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind.—(INS)—With 11 jurors tentatively accepted, the prosecuti on today was ready to produce evidence on which it expects to convict Mrs. Caroline G. Payne of the murder of Charles C. Mattingly, who pilted her to marry his secretary.

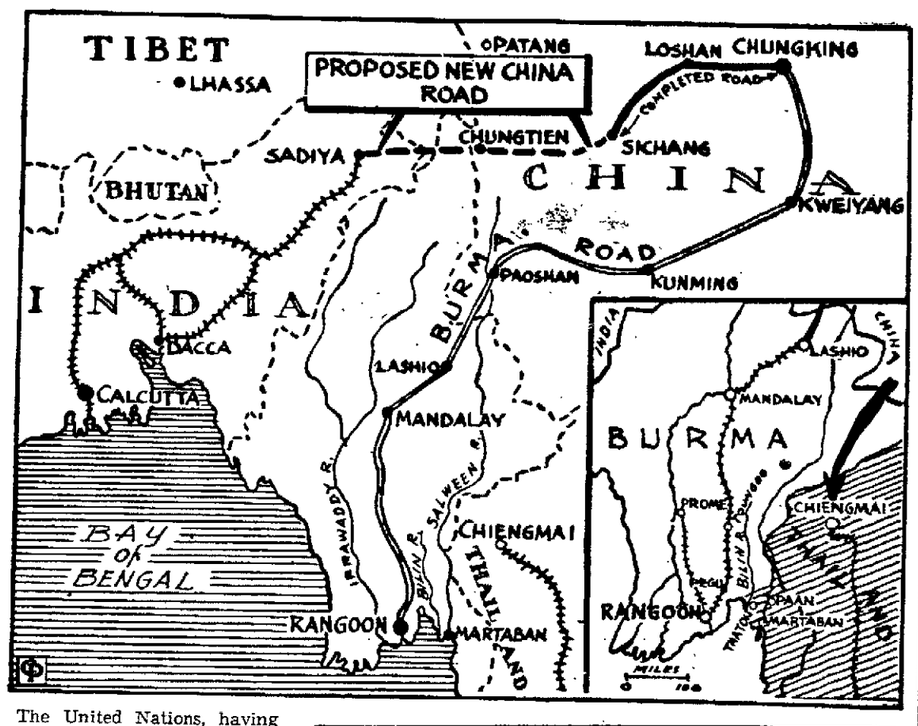

Mattingly, $7,500-a-year chief counsel for the Indiana Public Service commission, was killed by five bullets fired through a windo last July 5, as he sat by the side of his bride of little more than a year, the former Mrs. Lurayne Oberholtzer.

Mrs. Payne's lawyers were prepared to argue that the destruction of her romance had made her emotionally irresponsible to the point of temporary insanity.

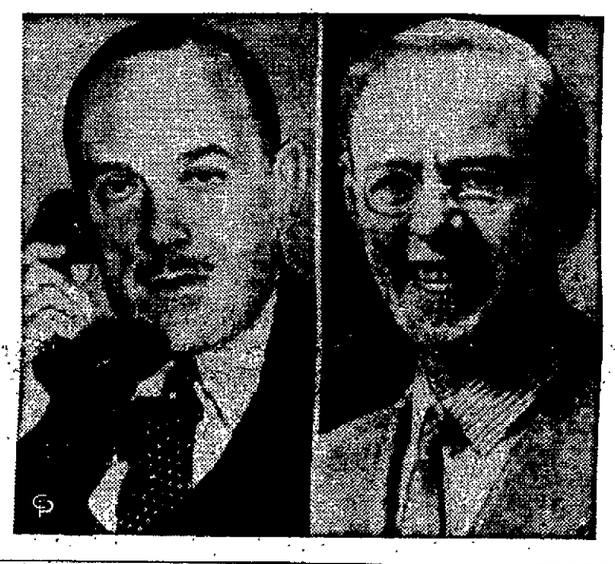

CALLS FOR SUPREMACY

New Road to China--In British Cabinet

The United Nations, having abandoned Rangoon as a port of entry for supplies destined for China, because of the Japanese threat to Burma, are now developing new routes to China, as shown on the map at the top. British forces defending Burma have mined the approaches to Rangoon, and dispatches today said a sizeable Japanese fleet had been seen in the Bay of Bengal, possibly portending a Jap attack on Rangoon. In lower picture are Capt. Oliver Littleton (left) who was named minister of state and supervisor of war production in Prime Minister Winston Churchill's new seven-man war cabinet, and Sir Stafford Cripps, who becomes lord privy seal and government leader in the house of commons. Churchill's cabinet shake-up came after repeated demands for action, following the Singapore disaster.

NO RELIEF SEEN IN COLD WAVE

Mercury Drops To Near Zero Again; Highways In County Still Dangerous.

The weatherman saw no immediate relief today from the cold wave which dropped the mercury near the zero mark again this morning after one of the coldest days of the winter yesterday.

More snow flurries and continued cold were predicted for this afternoon and tonight.

There was evidence by noon today, however, that the worst of the cold may be over. The temperature reading was 15 at noon, equal to yesterday's high. Low this morning was four above zero as compared with three below yesterday.

Failure of the mercury to rise above 15 degrees Thursday held the day's average to 9.5 degrees, 19 degrees below normal.

State and county roads in the Mansfield area were still slippery in spots today, but most of the dangerous grades and curves had been cindered.

Mansfield was one of the coldest cities in the state again today. Its four-above reading was one degree lower than the official low recorded in Akron and Columbus.

Fugitive Escapes Bullets But Falls After 'Tackle'

Mansfielder Helps Deputy Sheriffs Capture Warren Auto Thief After He Flees on Park Avenue East.

Flight of a youthful prisoner from Trumbull county authorities in a hail of bullets was cut short on Park avenue east yesterday by a flying tackle made by a Mansfield resident.

Responsible for the capture was Delbert Sims, 19 Bentley street, who tackled the youth just as he rounded a building two blocks from the scene of his escape.

The escape attempt was made by William Gann, Warren, who was being taken to the Ohio reformatory to serve from one to 20 years for auto theft.

Two Trumbull county deputies accompanied Gann to Mansfield. They had with them two other prisoners to be taken to the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus.

The group had stopped at Margaret's Inn on Park avenue east for lunch. Gann was released from his handcuffs while eating. He made his bold attempt to es-

One Arrested as City Cracks Down on Quarantine Orders

Mansfield public health authorities cracked down today on quarantine violators who have refused to comply with health regulations connected with contagious diseases for several months.

Earl W. Johannsen, 465½ West Fourth street, was arrested for violation of a quarantine and was fined $100 and costs after pleading guilty to the charge. Complainant in the case was James Kuneman, city sanitary officer.

Judge G. E. Kilbfleisch, suspended $90 of the fine pending Johannsen's observance of health regulations in the future. The West Fourth street man was charged with leaving his home before the expiration of a 10-day quarantine, placed on him when he contracted a case of measles.

Dr. William B. Wild, city-county health commissioner, warned violators that they are liable to prosecution and the $100 fine.

"It has come to the attention of this department," said Dr. Wild, "that several persons have been flagrantly ignoring the quarantine regulations. With the spring season coming on with its possibilities for the spread of contagious diseases, we intend to make every effort to make our quarantines effective.

Johannsen was the first person to be arrested under the quarantine law for several years. Health authorities said that he had been warned repeatedly that he should observe the quarantine but that he had ignored the warnings.

DRAFT BOARDS TO CALL 1-B AND 3-A MEN

They'll Dip Into Ranks of Deferred To Obtain March Quota of 500.

1-A LIST GETTING SHORT

Those With Minor Physical Defects and Those With Dependents Checked.

Richland county selective service boards were ready to dip into their registrants in the 1-B and 3-A classifications today to meet the army's request for more men and to supply nearly 500 Richland countains scheduled to take physical examinations in Columbus in March.

The county's three boards were shifting approximately 800 1-B men out of their registration lists today and it was expected that they will be ordered to report for examination before those in the 3-A group.

Registrants in 1-B are those who have been examined once and deferred because of defective eyes, insufficient teeth, or some other physical defect. Relaxed requirements now make them subject to call for military service.

To provide the 500 men called for examination in March will use up the county board's supply of men in the 1-A classification and make it imperative that they begin calling registrants who have been deferred, clerks said.

Several thousand registrants have been placed in 3-A group because of dependency. While the boards do not plan to call all of for service, clerks said the lists would be checked carefully and new information would be required in a number of the cases before the boards determine whether the registrant shall be inducted or deferred indefinitely because he is needed at home more than in the army.

Board 3 reported that dozens of men in the 3-A classification have already started to protest against their reclassification and offered to provide evidence that their families need them.

State draft headquarters, however, advised local boards to study each case individually and not to

MEET AT PLANT

Civic Group To Be Told of Westinghouse War Efforts.

An outline of the Mansfield Westinghouse plant's war efforts was to be presented this afternoon to a representative group of city and county officials, heads of business and civic organizations, and leaders of labor and industry.

Fifty guests and 15 company officials were present at the meeting, which started with a luncheon at noon. Speakers included B. W. Clark, Westinghouse vice president, F. R. Kohnstamm, sales manager, and J. H. Ashbaugh, manager of manufacturing and engineering. C. L. Van Derau, works manager, presided.

A limited tour of the company's manufacturing areas was to follow the luncheon and talks. Although restricted in scope, the tour was arranged to give the visitors a picture of operations necessary to adapt the plant to war production of binoculars, ammunition, and other defense items.

The Westinghouse plant has announced receipts of approximately $10,000,000 in war orders.

CALLS MEETING IN LABOR ROW

Conciliator Seeks To End Strike At Ohio Shoe Company.

PORTSMOUTH—(U.P.)—U. S. Labor Conciliator J. L. Connor of Washington arranged a meeting Saturday between parties to a labor dispute which has closed the Selby Shoe Company plant four week. The strike was called by the United Shoe Workers' union (CIO) to enforce demands for wage increases.

A group of nine civic organizations is conducting a poll of the company's 2,400 production workers to learn how many would be willing to return to work under the same working conditions and wages which existed when the strike was called. Union leaders have denounced the poll.

LEASES FIELD

TIFFIN—(INS)—Announcement of the leasing by the Tiffin Junior Chamber of Commerce of the Tiffin University farm for a flying field was made today.

John Harriman, chairman of the chamber's aviation committee, said $7,000 of a proposed $12,000 fund for hangars had been raised and that building would start early next month.

Invade Bali As Planes Thwart Burma Advance

Coastal Waters of Dutch Isle Churn With Fight on Invaders.

(By Associated Press)

BATAVIA, N. E. I.—With invasion today of the idyllic Island of Bali (and Timor, according to an additional Tokyo claim), Japan's multiple front offensive in the southwest Pacific took ominous form as a threat to isolate the United Nations forces in Java if not to by-pass that stronghold for a direct attack on Australia.

The waters around Bali, a Dutch colonial paradise where war had been little more than a fable of the white men, were threshed by the torpedoes, bombs and shells of warships and warplanes as the United Nations closed in an apparently unsuccessful battle to bar the strong sea-borne invasion force from the gleaming beaches of Bali.

The defenders again were exacting a heavy price for the Japanese attack, but evidently not heavy enough. Japanese landing parties swarmed from their transports and cut through the surf with their landing barges, despite the counter-blows of Allied air and surface craft and submarines.

The defenders scored direct bomb hits on one or more Japanese cruisers and three transports and eight near misses on a destroyer, according to an early communique of the United Nations. Four Japanese fighters were shot down and the defending air force returned to base intact.

United Nations warships and submarines opened the counter-attack last night on the invasion forces concentrated in waters around Bali. The 2,095-square mile island is separated from east-

American, British Fliers Blast Foe Trying to Cross Bilin River.

(By United Press)

CALCUTTA—Rangoon reports indicated today that heavy attacks by American and British air squadrons have brought the Japanese advance into Burma along the Bilin river front to a temporary standstill.

The Rangoon radio reported that "our troops held firmly, greatly heartened by the air support extended" by the American volunteer air group and the Royal Air Force pilots.

The Anglo-American fliers attacked Japanese positions, store depots and transport columns in the Bilin river area and blasted at Japanese forces crossing the river in rubber boats.

It was admitted that the Japanese carried out a big air bombardment of Mandalay in which the government buildings suffered heavy damage and a large number of civilian casualties were caused.

However, Japanese air activity was on a greatly reduced scale, possibly because of Japanese losses in combat with American and British fighter craft.

The battle was approaching a climax. The Japanese had crossed the river and were hammering at the imperial right flank in an effort to envelop and smash the entire line.

A communique broadcast by the Rangoon radio said counter-attacks from the imperial middle sector were keeping the enemy at bay but that "fighting is continuing fiercely."

At one point, at least, the Japanese were between the town of Bilin and the railroad town of Kyaik-to, only 25 miles west of

FIRE-BOMBS: Japanese Rain Incendiaries on Luzon Troops

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Japanese airplanes showered incendiary bombs behind the lines of Gen. Douglas MacArthur's forces on Batan peninsula where fighting continued along all sectors of the front, the war department reported today.

In a brief morning communique, the department described the fighting on Batan as "positional."

Although the communique made no mention of the intensity of the fighting, it appeared to be part of the Japanese campaign to "soften up" the MacArthur defenders for the anticipated all-out assault to drive them off the peninsula.

It said "a number" of incendiary bombs were dropped on installations behind the lines. Apparently they were aimed at ammunition dumps, supply centers and other positions. There was no mention of whether they caused any damage.

There was no further mention of American air or undersea activity in the Pacific. Other communiques of the past 24 hours told of successful attacks by American air forces in the southwest Pacific and submarine activities in waters close to Japan itself, while the presence of a "relatively small number" of American troops in Java was revealed officially in Batavia.

MacArthur's American and Filipino troops are playing an important although distant role in defense of the Dutch East Indies because every day they repulse the Japanese invaders in the Philippines they prevent the enemy from shifting formidable forces southwestward.

Enemy pressure is increasing against his Batan lines and still more Japanese reinforcements are being moved up in evident preparation for "a resumuption of the offensive." MacArthur's men also were said to be under fierce dive-bombing and artillery pounding.

Yesterday's communiques brought a note of cheer from the Far East battlefront, although the

UNAPPEASED: Cabinet Shift Disliked By Churchill Critics

(By United Press)

LONDON—Prime Minister Winston Churchill's critics were unappeased today by what they called a half-way cabinet shake-up and political quarters predicted that further changes would be made soon, probably extending to cabinet members holding war portfolios and possibly chiefs of the fighting services.

Preparing to face commons next week for a full-dress war debate, probably in secret session, Churchill reduced his war cabinet from nine to seven members, instead of to five as had been demanded.

He had named Lord Beaverbrook, who for a few weeks had held the new post of production minister, as a special envoy to the United States to work on problems arising from pooling United Nations resources and to attend to "such other special duties as may be entrusted to him from time to time by the war cabinet."

Beaverbrook declined to retain his post in the war cabinet on the ground of ill health. Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer, and Arthur Greenwood, minister without portfolio, also were dropped from the inner council but retained their portfolios as members of the cabinet at large.

Sir Stafford Cripps, partyless labor leader who recently returned home after serving successfully as ambassador to Russia, was added to the war cabinet as lord privy seal and leader of the house of commons. Oliver Lyttleton, a protege of ernmost Java, at its nearest point by a mile-wide strait. It is only about 120 miles from Bali to Java's big Soerabaja naval base.

A Dutch communique said succinctly:

"In connection with enemy action directed against Bali, vital points on Bali have been destroyed and naturally strong action is being taken against landings which the enemy is carrying out."

(Imperial headquarters at Tokyo announced that Japanese troops landed at dawn today on the Portuguese-Dutch island of Timor, east of Bali at the end of the southern chain of Dutch islands and just northwest of Darwin Australia, which Japanese planes have raided intensively thrice in two days.

(Tokyo said that the Timor expedition had been ordered to oust British imperial and Dutch troops in the Portuguese half of the island. Australian and Dutch forces had taken positions in Timor early in the war in anticipation of Japanese attack. Tokyo sought to assure Portugal that the Japanese would be withdrawn when (and if) the United Nations troops were expelled.

(Summarizing results of their assault yesterday on Darwin, the Japanese also claimed destruction of 26 planes along with military and naval establishments.

(The Australians have acknowledged considerable damage to ships, buildings and airdromes, along with casualties of 15 dead and 24 wounded. Six of the 93 Japanese fighters and bombers which delivered the third raid yesterday in two waves were shot down and the bombing accuracy of the others was impaired.)

Jap Forces Invade Portuguese Island

TOKYO — (Japanese Radio recorded by UP)—Imperial headquarters said today that Japanese army and navy forces invaded at dawn today the Portuguese half of Timor island to expel Australian and Dutch forces who were landed there Dec. 17.

Coincidentally, it was said, Japanese forces landed near Dili, on the northwest coast, capital of Portuguese Timor, and Koepang, in southeastern Timor, capital of the Dutch part of the island.

(The Japanese interest in the "integrity" of Portuguese Timor is obvious. Four hundred miles southeast is Melville island, a little off Darwin and a most convenient stepping stone for an invasion of Australia.)

Australians End Secret Meeting

NEW YORK — (INS) — "The Australian parliament ended its secret session at 7 15 a. m. EWT," the Australian radio said today, in a broadcast heard by NBC.

The announcer said the Australian parliament will be adjourned until next Wednesday afternoon.

The Melbourne radio also said Australia's 35,000,000 pound war loan already has been oversubscribed, with a total of 52 000,000 pounds (about $208,000,000) paid in so far.

Darwin Has Third Air Raid Alarm

SYDNEY, Australia - (AP)—The third air raid alarm in two days screamed today for the lonely little naval harbor of Darwin, which has been catapulted into sudden, vital importance to the United Nations by the loss of other naval bases.

No bombers appeared but this may have meant only that the Japanese were scouting the effects of their two destructive air smashes yesterday or feeling out the defenses of Australia's far northern coast for more forays on the town and its valuable harbor.

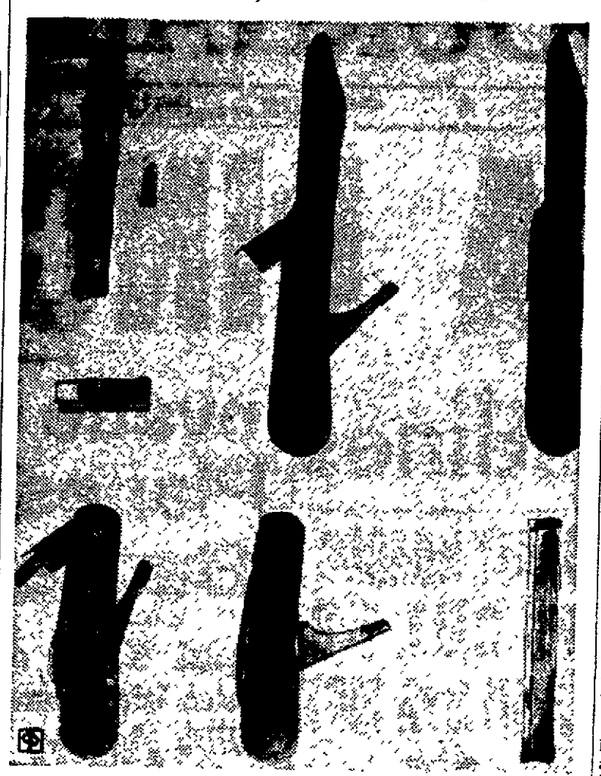

Australian fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns gave battle to the 93 Japanese bombers and fighters which roared over in two waves to put the Australian mainland under an invader's steel for the first time in its history.

They knocked down six but were unable to stave off considerable bomb damage both ashore and in the harbor and casualties including 15 persons killed and 24 wounded.

With some presumed operating an aircraft carrier, the first wave of 72 planes, twin-engined bombers convoyed by fighters, split into two groups. One smashed at the wharves and shipping. The other attacked in land. A second wave included 21 bombers.

Several ships were hit, wharves and buildings were damaged—among them several service and civilian hospitals which were bombed and machine-gunned—but no vital services were destroyed, a communique said.

Trial of Ex-French Leaders Livened By Daladier Shout.

VICHY —(INS)— The prosecutor was scheduled to sum up his case today in the trial of five former French leaders accused of leading the nation into a disastrous war with Germany.

More than 200 witnesses are scheduled to be called in the court proceedings at Riom. Including Gen. Maxime Weygand. Those on trial are former Premiers Edouard Daladier and Leon Blum, former Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, former air minister Guy Lachambre and former minister of industrial defense Pierre Jacomet.

Daladier, still fiery despite months of imprisonment, disrupted the court proceedings yesterday by shouting: "Everyone knows that Germany is the only one responsible for the outbreak of the war."

The presiding justice, Pierre Caous, adjourned the session with the remark that Daladier had "no right to insult Germany the Rangoon-Mandalay railroad portion of the Burma road.

(An official spokesman in Chungking said the Chinese refuse to concede that the battle of Burma is lost and have started operations to relieve the pressure on the defense lines in the south.

(Striking from northern Burma, the Chinese were pursuing defeated Thai forces toward Chiengmai, Thailand, 80 miles from the border.)

Rangoon gave no details of the fighting to the north, some 175 miles from the Bilin front, but the battle in southern Burma was raging at a high cost to both sides.

Air battles were reported all along the Bilin sector and American volunteers, who have won spectacular victories over the Japanese, were participating.

Both the RAF and the AVG (American Volunteer Group) were bombing enemy concentrations and troops in the line; "the enemy is being given little respite."

Japanese attempts to cross the Bilin at its mouth, on the coast of the Gulf of Martaban, were beaten back. Ground attacks on the right flank (northern end) of the defense line likewise failed.

Report Jap Force Off Burma Coast

CHUNGKING, China — (U.P.) — Newspaper dispatches from Kunming, Chinese terminus of the Burma road, said today that a large number of Japanese warships and transports had been sighted off the Burma coast.

It was asserted that the enemy fleet was approaching a flat, sandy and undefended part of the coast.

Dispatches said it was believed the Japanese might try simultaneous troop landings at many points on either side of the Irrawaddy river Delta.

Teh British were reported to have mined the mouths of the Irrawaddy, which empties at the southeast corner of the Bay of Bengal, and the Rangoon river which empties a little to the east, at Rangoon, into the gulf of Martaban.

Workers for the department of agriculture will canvass rural sections, while industrial conservation bureau inspectors and WPA workers concentrate on city and suburban districts.

The survey, aimed chiefly at dealer yards, will also include lots on which cars are partly dismantled or left standing. Lots which contain automobiles and trucks in running order for resale will be omitted.

British Leaders Expect More Changes; War Debate Set Next Week.

Churchill who is regarded as one of the "coming men," retained his post as minister of state in the war cabinet, to "exercise general supervision of production."

Thus the brief attempt to maintain a production czar, holding approximately the powers of Donald Nelson in the United States, was given up.

Churchill retained his portfolios of first lord of the treasury and minister of defense, rejecting strong demands for a separte defense minister.

Maj. Clement Attlee, leader of the labor party, whom Cripps had replaced as lord privy seal, took over the post of dominions secretary which had been held by Viscount Cranborne, and he will also act as deputy prime minister.

It was expected that Cripps would largely take over Churchill's job as government spokesman in the house of commons, giving the prime minister more time for other duties.

Nazis Repelled In New Soviet Attack

MOSCOW—(INS)—Fighting raged with unabated violence on the northwestern Russian front today as the Nazis counter-attacked—heavily supported by tanks—only to be repelled by Red army blows.

The Moscow radio said that the enemy was constantly being rolled back to the west under the thunderous Soviet offensive.

Late dispatches from the front reported the Russian recapture of Kresty, 65 miles northwest of Smolensk, in a further extension of the northern arm of the Soviet pincers that is gradually closing around the Nazi base at Smolensk.

The Moscow radio said reoccupation of Kresty means the two prongs of the Russian drive north and south of Smolensk are now only 150 miles apart. Huge German units are gradually being squeezed in this vast but narrowing Russian trap.

Other reports said Nazi losses on all fronts were extremely heavy in the past 24 hours.

On Trial for Defeat of France

Charged with responsibility for France's defeat by Germany, five former French officials have gone on trial in Riom, unoccupied France. The five are Leon Blum, former premier; Edouard Daladier, also a former premier; Gen. Maurice Gamelin, former Allied chief; Guy la Chambre, former air minister, and Pierre Jacomet, former administrator of national defense industries. The sixth defendant, Pierre Cot, former air minister, is not being tried because he is living safely in a suburb of Washington, D. C.

adopt a blanket rule of deferring men who fall in certain groups.

County boards renewed their appeal today to registrants not to attempt to enlist in the army after their boards start inducting them by the regular procedure. It is still possible for registrants to enlist if they have not been called for physical examination or ordered to report.

Boards also asked registrants to indicate when they were registered and list their order numbers when reporting a change of address. Order numbers for the 5,000 men who registered last week-end in the county probably will be set up next month.

One Dead, 3 Parachute to Safety In Mid-Air Collision.

SACRAMENTO, Cal. —(INS)— Private Joseph C. Daaf, of Roseville, Mich., was dead today, victim of a mid-air collision of two army training planes near Mather field.

Lt. Lloyd D. Collins, of Bell, Calif., who was piloting the plane in which Daaf rode, parachuted to safety, as did the occupants of the other plane, Lt. William Erck, jr., and Sergt. J. H. Kreutner. The latter suffered back injuries.

cape just as he and the officers left the restaurant.

Ducking around the back of the restaurant, he started running across backyards. One of the deputies opened fire on Gann with his gun. None of the shots hit Gann but one of the bullets entered the home of F. A. Zediker, 18 Junction street, but no one was injured.

The other deputy was holding the two prisoners headed for Columbus and was unable to come to the aid of his companion. Gann ran across Park avenue east and headed toward Second street with the one deputy chasing him.

Sims, who is employed at the Dominion Electric company, was also eating lunch at the restaurant. Seeing Gann dashing across Park avenue east, he followed him.

They met at the corner of a building at Foster and Second street and Sims downed Gann with a flying tackle. The deputy chasing Gann handcuffed him again and took him on to the reformatory.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Miss Emma Nesbit, 38, of Fremont, a nurse registered with St Alexis hospital here for the last week, was near death today from third degree burns. Firemen said she fell asleep while smoking in bed.

Miss Nesbit was taken to Mount Sinai hospital by a fire rescue squad.

What do I do?
—to keep my car's brightwork from rusting?
This is easy—but important to your car's eye appeal. The bumpers, grille guards and other chrome surfaces should first be washed off. Then, simply apply a protective coating of wax. Floor, furniture or car wax will do equally well. In case you already have a few rust spots on the brightwork, rub them off with a scouring powder—the same kind you use on the bathtub. After removing the rust, apply wax.

CHAPTER VIII

Midnight found them in the cocktail lounge together, Stephen apparently delighted to have her alone at last and Judith, weary of dancing and the talk of the young married set, grateful for the quiet of the dimly-lighted room and his friendly presence. What was it that made one man stir pulse, another steady it? There was a flame to Max's touch; Stephen's gave her a feeling of security

'Tell me about yourself," Stephen"

'There's not much to tell"

"There's always something to tell in any life"

He smiled 'Well, I have a swell family, three brothers and two sisters Two brothers and one sister are married My father is dead and my mother lives to see all the children and grandchildren come home and sit around the dining room table It's quite a mob when we all get together. We've all worked our way through school which was tough going at the time, but good for us Then I was sent here Larry and I work for the same company"

"But you're more advanced than Larry'

'Well, yes I'm next in line to be office manager"

Office manager she thought Then a pretty, vivacious wife who will encourage you and share with you and keep your house in beautiful order and give you one or two lovely children you'll be crazy about A membership here where you'll dance on Saturday night, play golf on Sunday and bowl on Monday That's your life Stephen That's your neatly-charted life

He said You . . No I don't suppose you would I mean I'm driving home tomorrow—it's only about a hundred miles—and I thought if you weren't doing anything . ."

'Not this time thanks I'd like to be with my family and I must get an early train back tomorrow' A train not to the apartment, not to the office, but to Max .

I didn't think you would"

She smiled 'Could'

When they left the club Stephen suggested a sandwich and they drove to a small restaurant There were awkward gaps of silence which Judith tried to fill by talking at random about the workings of a large department store, the high cost of living in New York and current world problems On the latter subject Stephen was extremely well informed and, to her surprise, his opinions were definite and carefully thought out

A small light burned in the hall of her home when she opened the door and stepped inside and Stephen stepped in quietly beside her

She held out her hand finding his handclasp firm and masculine

Thank you, Stephen, for taking care of my little sister'

Though he smiled, he looked embarrassed again "My pleasure I . . . Will you be coming home soon?"

I don't know just when" Because of Max . .

'I'd like to know I'd like to see you again if—"

I usually let my family know Harriet will know Good night"

'Good night"

She forgot him as soon as the door was closed and he was gone

But in the morning Harriet though busy with the feeding and care of her two small sons would not let her forget him In the big old-fashioned kitchen where Bessie the colored cook was trying to get breakfast for the family Harriet talked while she tried to pour orange juice into the reluctant mouth of Walter at the same time trying to keep Bill's fingers out of his cereal

Did you have a good time last night, Judith? Larry is still asleep Poor dear It's so seldom he has a chance to sleep on Sunday morning at our house I'm dead I tried to keep the boys quiet so as not to awaken Mother and Dad and you Wait'll you have yours'

Taking the task of feeding Bill from Harriet Judith looked at the two sturdy little boys She thought 'I love both of you but not the life that goes with you the responsibility the illness the giving up of freedom It's never occurred to me to want to have a child of my own"

'Did you like Steve?" Harriet asked hopefully 'He's a wonderful boy Judith And he has great potentialities in business Everyone who has met him likes him Of course he's ahead of Larry at the office, but when Mr Forbes the office manager, is transferred elsewhere, Steve will step in his place and Larry will be his assistant We resented first Steve's being sent Larry thought he'd be made assistant but Steve has done so much weeding out dead wood and organizing so efficiently, that we can't resent him He has a wonderful head for business He's smart He has Forbes afraid of his own job"

"He isn't sure of himself with the opposite sex"

Harriet laughed "You know, I think he's shy I don't think he's ever been serious about any girl or even very close to one It's refreshing, isn't it? He's sweet and unspoiled He was interested in you"

"I'm afraid you built me up too much"

"No, I didn't I really didn't I had a feeling . . . well, that you were the right girl for him" She straightened her aching back and looked at Judith soberly 'With the right girl Steve Larrabee will go far The right girl will realize his shortcomings, inflate his ego, make him realize how smart he is He needs a girl stronger than he, someone to direct his ambition, his capacity for work and smooth off his rough edges"

"But why do you think I'm the girl for him?" It was funny, Harriet's serious matchmaking

Harriet looked the kind, concerned older sister 'Because you need someone like Stephen to give you a normal woman's life You're just kidding yourself Judith, that you've chosen the better way'

'But people aren't made the same They don't want the same things"

Women do All women want the same things"

Judith spent the remainder of the day with her parents in the comfortable living-room where a great fire roared in the old brick fireplace And so languid was she so contented, that it was with reluctance she left them that afternoon knowing as she threw a kiss to them that some of her roots were still in Clinton and that those roots were indestructible.

'I had a marvelous time over the week-end' Emily said Monday evening as she sat opposite Judith in the small dinette of the apartment and Fannie shuffled slowly between them Emily's brown eyes fairly danced and her happy smile was perpetual Her appetite scant, she merely nibbled at her food 'Tim and I went dancing Saturday night and then we took a long ride later I've learned something, Judith I've learned there's fear in love the fear of loss You can't see ahead and it scares you"

Judith wore a simple brown wool business frock Her head was dark and shining in the candlelight 'But Tim loves you I saw it in his face"

"I'm sure he does He has said it so many times I mustn't doubt it But I want to marry him Judith Seeing each other, dancing, having fun isn't enough It's still a man's world, isn't? You have to wait for them to ask you and if they never do . . . You see, I'm terribly serious about this I was just romantic about the others Even if Tim would disappoint me, I'd still love him"

Was she just being romantic about Max? Judith wondered But Max's personality had struck her heart like a blow and all at once she had wanted to be only what he wanted her to be

After Fannie had brought in the coffee Judith said and there was an appealing little-girl look in her eyes, 'I haven't told you about Max Worthington' What could she say about Max? She thought, "I could explain Stephen Larrabee so well but Max defies description He isn't a type"

Who is he?' Emily asked

"I met him Saturday a week after Phyllis and Ames sailed He'd met Bob Kennedy before Max and I had dinner on Friday last and I'm to see him again tomorrow evening He's a combination of so many things I can't explain him He seems to have seen everything and to know everything He makes me feel terribly young" She looked at Emily steadily "He's exciting, but not in the way Tim is exciting Max has lived violently, he said, and yet he's gentle and tender and thoughtful"

'I couldn't cope with a man like that."

"Perhaps I can't I don't know enough"

"You seem more than usually interested"

She nodded 'I am I'm very serious about this too"

Emily was sewing and Judith reading when the telephone in the bedroom rang

'Maybe it's for you,' Emily said

Max? Judith tried to be casual about putting the book aside and leaving the living-room

Judith?" Max asked

'Yes" That voice, she thought, robs me of strength and resistance I grovel and hate myself but I can't help it

'I am sitting in this hideous hotel room wishing there was a picture of you here to cheer me Do you suppose you could manage to have some new ones taken? No old ones, mind you. I want one A M—after Max"

"Is there any particular pose you prefer?"

He laughed "I remember your left profile because you were sitting in the car that way That however isn't all I remember I remember everything Did you have a pleasant week end at home?"

"All my week-ends at home are pleasant And yours?"

'Hectic They usually are I don't know why I let myself be dragged to places that bore me with people who are so inferior to you that the comparison is painful You haven't said anything that matters You know what I want you to say"

'No Max, I don't"

'Say, I love you very much'"

"I . . ."

He laughed 'You won't? I'll make you say it tomorrow evening at 7 30 Good night my darling'

The lamps were dim gold and the apartment seemed to be in a state of waiting as tense as she That he was late was forgiven with tender amusement She was grateful that Emily was out But she could not think All her forces had joined into the common one of eager waiting

When finally she opened the door he stood there, smiling, a smile that made her weak and wordless Then the door closed and the small foyer received them Max drew her close, his hands as demanding as his lips that kissed hers.

"Will you say it now, Judith?"

"It's past 7 30"

"You're a vain, obstinate darling"

'I love you very much, Max"

"And I love you very much" He held her off and looked at her his eyes narrowing "And ten years from now you'll still be to me what you are tonight We'll still be—as I've ruined your han, but han like yours was meant to be ruined Are you happy?"

"Very. But it's a new kind of happiness for me that eliminates the other things I thought made me happy"

"You're so small and young to have so many big ideas."

"Not now. Not this minute..."

His second kiss was neither fierce nor demanding but very gentle 'Get your silly hat, darling."

JAPS TIGHTEN JAVA PINCERS, INVADE BALI

Coastal Waters Around Dutch Isle Churned By Battle To Repell Foe.

ernmost Java, at its nearest point by a mile-wide strait. It is only about 120 miles from Bali to Java's big Soerabaja naval base.

A Dutch communique said succinctly:

"In connection with enemy action directed against Bali, vital points on Bali have been destroyed and naturally strong action is being taken against landings which the enemy is carrying out."

(Imperial headquarters at Tokyo announced that Japanese troops landed at dawn today on the Portuguese-Dutch island of Timor, east of Bali at the end of the southern chain of Dutch islands and just northwest of Darwin Australia, which Japanese planes have raided intensively thrice in two days.

(Tokyo said that the Timor expedition had been ordered to oust British imperial and Dutch troops in the Portuguese half of the island. Australian and Dutch forces had taken positions in Timor early in the war in anticipation of Japanese attack. Tokyo sought to assure Portugal that the Japanese would be withdrawn when (and if) the United Nations troops were expelled.

(Summarizing results of their assault yesterday on Darwin, the Japanese also claimed destruction of 26 planes along with military and naval establishments.

(The Australians have acknowledged considerable damage to ships, buildings and airdromes, along with casualties of 15 dead and 24 wounded. Six of the 93 Japanese fighters and bombers which delivered the third raid yesterday in two waves were shot down and the bombing accuracy of the others was impaired.)

Jap Forces Invade Portuguese Island

TOKYO — (Japanese Radio recorded by UP)—Imperial headquarters said today that Japanese army and navy forces invaded at dawn today the Portuguese half of Timor island to expel Australian and Dutch forces who were landed there Dec. 17.

Coincidentally, it was said, Japanese forces landed near Dili, on the northwest coast, capital of Portuguese Timor, and Koepang, in southeastern Timor, capital of the Dutch part of the island.

(The Japanese interest in the "integrity" of Portuguese Timor is obvious. Four hundred miles southeast is Melville island, a little off Darwin and a most convenient stepping stone for an invasion of Australia.)

Ten Jap Planes Downed In Raids

BATAVIA—(INS)—Ten Japanese planes, five bombers and five fighters, were shot down by United Nations fighter planes during enemy attacks on Surabaya Wednesday and yesterday, it was announced today.

Australians End Secret Meeting

NEW YORK — (INS) — "The Australian parliament ended its secret session at 7.15 a m. EWT," the Australian radio said today, in a broadcast heard by NBC.

The announcer said the Australian parliament will be adjourned until next Wednesday afternoon.

The Melbourne radio also said Australia's 35,000,000 pound war loan already has been oversubscribed, with a total of 52,000,000 pounds (about $208,000,000) paid in so far.

Darwin Has Third Air Raid Alarm

SYDNEY, Australia—(AP)—The third air raid alarm in two days screamed today for the lonely little naval harbor of Darwin, which has been catapulted into sudden, vital importance to the United Nations by the loss of other naval bases.

No bombers appeared but this may have meant only that the Japanese were scouting the effects of their two destructive air smashes yesterday or feeling out the defenses of Australia's far northern coast for more forays on the town and its valuable harbor.

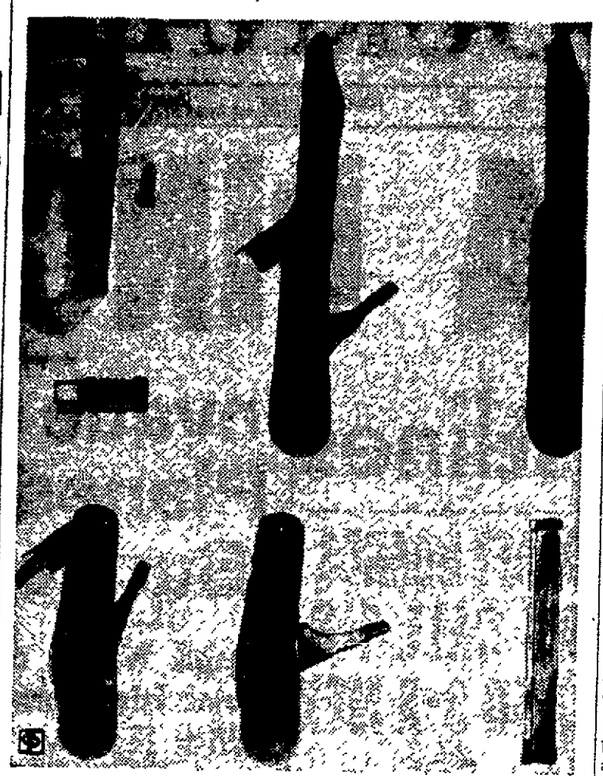

Australian fighter planes and anti-aircraft guns gave battle to the 93 Japanese bombers and fighters which roared over in two waves to put the Australian mainland under an invader's steel for the first time in its history.

They knocked down six but were unable to stave off considerable bomb damage both ashore and in the harbor and casualties including 15 persons killed and 24 wounded.

With some presumed operating an aircraft carrier, the first wave of 72 planes, twin-engined bombers convoyed by fighters, split into two groups. One smashed at the wharves and shipping. The other attacked in land. A second wave included 21 bombers.

Several ships were hit, wharves and buildings were damaged—among them several service and civilian hospitals which were bombed and machine-gunned—but no vital services were destroyed, a communique said.

Knife? No, an Alien's Gun!

Found in the possession of a 62-year-old Japanese alien seized in Watsonville, Calif., this ordinary large-size pocket knife in reality conceals a 22-caliber, single-shot firearm. Also in the alien's possession, federal agents found 50 rounds of .22-caliber ammunition, three large knives and two film pack cases, all contraband articles.

Trial of Ex-French Leaders Livened By Daladier Shout.

VICHY —(INS)— The prosecutor was scheduled to sum up his case today in the trial of five former French leaders accused of leading the nation into a disastrous war with Germany.

More than 200 witnesses are scheduled to be called in the court proceedings at Riom, including Gen. Maxime Weygand. Those on trial are former Premiers Edouard Daladier and Leon Blum, former Gen. Maurice Gusiave Gamelin, former air minister Guy Lachambre and former minister of industrial defense Pierre Jacomet.

Daladier, still fiery despite months of imprisonment, disrupted the court proceedings yesterday by shouting: "Everyone knows that Germany is the only one responsible for the outbreak of the war."

The presiding justice, Pierre Caous, adjourned the session with the remark that Daladier had "no right to insult Germany

TWO MURDERERS DIE IN CHAIR

Pay Penalty For Syndicate Slaying Of Police Informer.

OSSINING, N. Y.—(INS)—Frank (The Dasher) Abbandando, 32, and Harry (Happy) Maione, 33, members of Murder, Incorporated, died in the electric chair at Sing Sing today for the brutal slaying of George Rudnick, a police informer.

Abbandando entered the execution chamber at 12:01 a. m. EWT and was pronounced dead at 12:04 Maione was strapped in the chair at 12:06 a. m. and was dead at 12:10.

The pair had been twice tried, twice convicted and twice condemned to death for the murder ofRudnick on May 25, 1937, in a Brooklyn garage Rudnick had been stabbed 54 times with an ice-pick.

FLIERS THWART JAP DRIVE ON BURMA FRONT

American, British Planes Hit Foe Trying To Cross Bilin River.

the Rangoon-Mandalay railroad portion of the Burma road.

(An official spokesman in Chungking said the Chinese refuse to concede that the battle of Burma is lost and have started operations to relieve the pressure on the defense lines in the south.

(Striking from northern Burma, the Chinese were pursuing defeated Thai forces toward Chiengmai, Thailand, 80 miles from the border.)

Rangoon gave no details of the fighting to the north, some 175 miles from the Bilin front, but the battle in southern Burma was raging at a high cost to both sides.

Air battles were reported all along the Bilin sector and American volunteers, who have won spectacular victories over the Japanese, were participating.

Both the RAF and the AVG (American Volunteer Group) were bombing enemy concentrations and troops in the line; "the enemy is being given little respite."

Japanese attempts to cross the Bilin at its mouth, on the coast of the Gulf of Martaban, were beaten back. Ground attacks on the right flank (northern end) of the defense line likewise failed.

Report Jap Force Off Burma Coast

CHUNGKING, China — (U.P.) — Newspaper dispatches from Kunming, Chinese terminus of the Burma road, said today that a large number of Japanese warships and transports had been sighted off the Burma coast.

It was asserted that the enemy fleet was approaching a flat, sandy and undefended part of the coast.

Dispatches said it was believed the Japanese might try simultaneous troop landings at many points on either side of the Irrawaddy river Delta.

Teh British were reported to have mined the mouths of the Irrawaddy, which empties at the southeast corner of the Bay of Bengal, and the Rangoon river which empties a little to the east, at Rangoon, into the gulf of Martaban.

SCRAP SOUGHT

Ohio To Take Census of All Automobile Graveyards.

CLEVELAND— (AP) —A census of automobile "graveyards" will be conducted in Ohio to uncover additional sources of scrap iron and steel for the nation's war production.

Howard F. Black, field officer for the bureau of industrial conservation, here to initiate the Ohio survey, said three agencies will cooperate.

Workers for the department of agriculture will canvass rural sections, while industrial conservation bureau inspectors and WPA workers concentrate on city and suburban districts.

The survey, aimed chiefly at dealer yards, will also include lots on which cars are partly dismantled or left standing. Lots which contain automobiles and trucks in running order for resale will be omitted.

CABINET SHIFT HIT BY CRITICS

British Leaders Expect More Changes; War Debate Set Next Week.

Churchill who is regarded as one of the "coming men," retained his post as minister of state in the war cabinet, to "exercise general supervision of production."

Thus the brief attempt to maintain a production czar, holding approximately the powers of Donald Nelson in the United States, was given up.

Churchill retained his portfolios of first lord of the treasury and minister of defense, rejecting strong demands for a separte defense minister.

Maj. Clement Attlee, leader of the labor party, whom Cripps had replaced as lord privy seal, took over the post of dominions secretary which had been held by Viscount Cranborne, and he will also act as deputy prime minister.

It was expected that Cripps would largely take over Churchill's job as government spokesman in the house of commons, giving the prime minister more time for other duties.

Nazis Repelled In New Soviet Attack

MOSCOW—(INS)—Fighting raged with unabated violence on the northwestern Russian front today as the Nazis counter-attacked—heavily supported by tanks—only to be repelled by Red army blows.

The Moscow radio said that the enemy was constantly being rolled back to the west under the thunderous Soviet offensive.

Late dispatches from the front reported the Russian recapture of Kresty, 65 miles northwest of Smolensk, in a further extension of the northern arm of the Soviet pincers that is gradually closing around the Nazi base at Smolensk.

The Moscow radio said reoccupation of Kresty means the two prongs of the Russian drive north and south of Smolensk are now only 150 miles apart. Huge German units are gradually being squeezed in this vast but narrowing Russian trap.

Other reports said Nazi losses on all fronts were extremely heavy in the past 24 hours.

On Trial for Defeat of France

Charged with responsibility for France's defeat by Germany, five former French officials have gone on trial in Riom, unoccupied France. The five are Leon Blum, former premier; Edouard Daladier, also a former premier; Gen. Maurice Gamelin, former Allied chief; Guy la Chambre, former air minister, and Pierre Jacomet, former administrator of national defense industries The sixth defendant, Pierre Cot, former air minister, is not being tried because he is living safely in a suburb of Washington, D. C.

County boards renewed their appeal today to registrants not to attempt to enlist in the army after their boards start inducting them by the regular procedure. It is still possible for registrants to enlist if they have not been called for physical examination or ordered to report.

Boards also asked registrants to indicate when they were registered and list their order numbers when reporting a change of address. Order numbers for the 5,000 men who registered last week-end in the county probably will be set up next month.

cape just as he and the officers left the restaurant.

Ducking around the back of the restaurant, he started running across backyards. One of the deputies opened fire on Gann with his gun. None of the shots hit Gann but one of the bullets entered the home of F. A. Zediker, 18 Junction street, but no one was injured.

The other deputy was holding the two prisoners headed for Columbus and was unable to come to the aid of his companion. Gann ran across Park avenue east and headed toward Second street with the one deputy chasing him.

Sims, who is employed at the Dominion Electric company, was also eating lunch at the restaurant. Seeing Gann dashing across Park avenue east, he followed him.

They met at the corner of a building at Foster and Second street and Sims downed Gann with a flying tackle. The deputy chasing Gann handcuffed him again and took him on to the reformatory.

What do I do?

—to keep my car's brightwork from rusting?

This is easy—but important to your car's eye appeal. The bumpers, grille guards and other chrome surfaces should first be washed off. Then, simply apply a protective coating of wax. Floor, furniture or car wax will do equally well. In case you already have a few rust spots on the brightwork, rub them off with a scouring powder—the same kind you use on the bathtub. After removing the rust, apply wax.

CHAPTER VIII

Midnight found them in the cocktail lounge together, Stephen apparently delighted to have her alone at last and Judith, weary of dancing and the talk of the young married set, grateful for the quiet of the dimly-lighted room and his friendly presence. What was it that made one man stir pulse, another steady it? There was a flame to Max's touch; Stephen's gave her a feeling of security.

"Tell me about yourself," Stephen."

"There's not much to tell."

"There's always something to tell in any life".

He smiled "Well, I have a swell family, three brothers and two sisters Two brothers and one sister are married My father is dead and my mother lives to see all the children and grandchildren come home and sit around the dining room table. It's quite a mob when we all get together. We've all worked our way through school which was tough going at the time, but good for us Then I was sent here Larry and I work for the same company"

"But you're more advanced than Larry"

"Well, yes I'm next in line to be office manager"

Office manager, she thought Then a pretty, vivacious wife who will encourage you and share with you and keep your house in beautiful order and give you one or two lovely children you'll be crazy about A membership here where you'll dance on Saturday night, play golf on Sunday and bowl on Monday That's your life, Stephen That's your neatly-charted life

He said 'You . . No, I don't suppose you would I mean I'm driving home tomorrow—it's only about a hundred miles—and I thought if you weren't doing anything . ."

Not this time, thanks I'd like to be with my family and I must get an early train back tomorrow" A train not to the apartment, not to the office, but to Max . . .

I didn't think you would"

She smiled "Could '

When they left the club Stephen suggested a sandwich and they drove to a small restaurant There were awkward gaps of silence which Judith tried to fill by talking at random about the workings of a large department store, the high cost of living in New York, and current world problems On the latter subject Stephen was extremely well informed and, to her surprise, his opinions were definite and carefully thought out

A small light burned in the hall of her home when she opened the door and stepped inside and Stephen stepped in quietly beside her.

She held out her hand, finding his handclasp firm and masculine

"Thank you, Stephen, for taking care of my little sister"

Though he smiled, he looked embarrassed again "My pleasure I . . . Will you be coming home soon?"

I don't know just when" Because of Max . . .

'I'd like to know I'd like to see you again if—"

'I usually let my family know Harriet will know Good night"

'Good night'

She forgot him as soon as the door was closed and he was gone

But in the morning Harriet though busy with the feeding and care of her two small sons would not let her forget him In the big old-fashioned kitchen where Bessie the colored cook, was trying to get breakfast for the family Harriet talked while she tried to pour orange juice into the reluctant mouth of Walter, at the same time trying to keep Bill's fingers out of his cereal

'Did you have a good time last night, Judith? Larry is still asleep Poor dear It's so seldom he has a chance to sleep on Sunday morning at our house I'm dead I tried to keep the boys quiet so as not to awaken Mother and Dad and you Wait'll you have yours'

Taking the task of feeding Bill from Harriet Judith looked at the two sturdy little boys She thought, 'I love both of you but not the life that goes with you the responsibility the illness the giving up of freedom It's never occurred to me to want to have a child of my own"

"Did you like Steve?" Harriet asked hopefully 'He's a wonderful boy Judith And he has great potentialities in business Everyone who has met him likes him Of course he's ahead of Larry at the office, but when Mr. Forbes the office manager, is transferred elsewhere Steve will step in his place and Larry will be his assistant We resented first Steve's being sent Larry thought he'd be made assistant but Steve has done so much, weeding out dead wood and organizing so efficiently, that we can't resent him He has a wonderful head for business. He's smart He has Forbes afraid of his own job"

"He isn't sure of himself with the opposite sex"

Harriet laughed. "You know, I think he's shy. I don't think he's ever been serious about any girl or even very close to one It's refreshing, isn't it? He's sweet and unspoiled. He was interested in you"

"I'm afraid you built me up too much"

"No, I didn't I really didn't. I had a feeling . . . well, that you were the right girl for him" She straightened her aching back and looked at Judith soberly "With the right girl, Steve Larrabee will go far The right girl will realize his shortcomings, inflate his ego, make him realize how smart he is He needs a girl stronger than he, someone to direct, his ambition, his capacity for work and smooth off his rough edges"

"But why do you think I'm the girl for him?" It was funny, Harriet's serious matchmaking

Harriet looked the kind, concerned older sister 'Because you need someone like Stephen to give you a normal woman's life You're just kidding yourself Judith, that you've chosen the better way"

"But people aren't made the same They don't want the same things"

"Women do All women want the same things"

Judith spent the remainder of the day with her parents in the comfortable living-room where a great fire roared in the old brick fireplace And so languid was she so contented that it was with reluctance she left them that afternoon, knowing as she threw a kiss to them that some of her roots were still in Clinton and that those roots were indestructible

"I had a marvelous time over the week-end,' Emily said Monday evening as she sat opposite Judith in the small dinette of the apartment and Fannie shuffled slowly between them Emily's brown eyes fairly danced and her happy smile was perpetual Her appetite scant, she merely nibbled at her food "Tim and I went dancing Saturday night and then we took a long ride later I've learned something, Judith I've learned there's fear in love, the fear of loss You can't see ahead and it scares you"

Judith wore a simple brown wool business frock Her head was dark and shining in the candlelight "But Tim loves you I saw it in his face"

'I'm sure he does He has said it so many times I mustn't doubt it But I want to marry him Judith Seeing each other, dancing, having fun isn't enough It's still a man's world, isn't? You have to wait for them to ask you and if they never do . . . You see, I'm terribly serious about this I was just romantic about the others Even if Tim would disappoint me, I'd still love him"

Was she just being romantic about Max? Judith wondered But Max's personality had struck her heart like a blow and all at once she had wanted to be only what he wanted her to be

After Fannie had brought in the coffee Judith said and there was an appealing little-girl look in her eyes, "I haven't told you about Max Worthington" What could she say about Max? She thought, "I could explain Stephen Larrabee so well, but Max defies description He isn't a type"

'Who is he?" Emily asked

"I met him Saturday a week after Phyllis and Ames sailed He'd met Bob Kennedy before Max and I had dinner on Friday last and I'm to see him again tomorrow evening He's a combination of so many things I can't explain him He seems to have seen everything and to know everything He makes me feel terribly young" She looked at Emily steadily. "He's exciting, but not in the way Tim is exciting Max has lived violently, he said, and yet he's gentle and tender and thoughtful."

'I couldn't cope with a man like that."

"Perhaps I can't I don't know enough."

"You seem more than usually interested"

She nodded "I am I'm very serious about this, too"

Emily was sewing and Judith reading when the telephone in the bedroom rang

'Maybe it's for you," Emily said

Max? Judith tried to be casual about putting the book aside and leaving the living room

"Judith?" Max asked

"Yes" That voice, she thought, robs me of strength and resistance I grovel and hate myself, but I can't help it

"I am sitting in this hideous hotel room wishing there was a picture of you here to cheer me Do you suppose you could manage to have some new ones taken? No old ones, mind you I want one A M—after Max"

"Is there any particular pose you prefer?'

He laughed "I remember your left profile because you were sitting in the car that way That however isn't all I remember I remember everything Did you have a pleasant week-end at home?"

"All my week ends at home are pleasant And yours?"

'Hectic They usually are I don't know why I let myself be dragged to places that bore me with people who are so inferior to you that the comparison is painful You haven't said anything that matters You know what I want you to say"

'No Max, I don't."

"Say, 'I love you very much"

"I . ."

He laughed "You won't? I'll make you say it tomorrow evening at 7 30 Good night, my darling'

The lamps were dim gold and the apartment seemed to be in a state of waiting as tense as she That he was late was forgiven with tender amusement She was grateful that Emily was out But she could not think All her forces had joined into the common one of eager waiting

When, finally she opened the door he stood there, smiling, a smile that made her weak and wordless Then the door closed and the small foyer received them. Max drew her close, his hands as demanding as his lips that kissed hers.

"Will you say it now, Judith?"

"It's past 7 30."

"You're a vain, obstinate darling"

'I love you very much, Max"

"And I love you very much" He held her off and looked at her, his eyes narrowing. "And ten years from now you'll still be to me what you are tonight. We'll still be—as I've ruined your hair, but hair like yours was meant to be ruined Are you happy?"

"Very. But it's a new kind of happiness for me that eliminates the other things I thought made me happy."

"You're so small and young to have so many big ideas"

"Not now. Not this minute..."

His second kiss was neither fierce nor demanding, but very gentle. "Get your silly hat, darling."

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, FEBRUARY 20, 1942.

Foresight: With the mechanism removed, parking meters can be made to serve nicely as hitching posts.

The government is making it increasingly difficult to find something that can be given up during Lent.

That relieved look that you notice on some faces nowadays indicates that the income tax report has been filed and the first payment made.

War Takes No Holidays

WASHINGTON'S birthday anniversary is ordinarily observed as a holiday, with quite general suspension of industrial employment. It is to be different this year, however, even with the anniversary coming on Sunday, and observance set for Monday.

War production now takes precedence over holidays, Sundays, or any other occasion for suspending industrial operations.

It has been asked by Donald M. Nelson, head of the War Production Board, that workers in factories turning out war equipment disregard Washington's birthday and go right ahead with their work—which is considered just as important as military service.

In making this appeal Nelson said: "The most effective way to honor George Washington's memory this year is to work full time, so that the nation to which he gave independence can make that independence stick."

And, while it cannot be known what Washington would say, or do, if he were projected into today's surroundings, it's a safe guess that he would endorse the idea of putting the war national effort ahead of recognition of his birthday anniversary. He might even seek to inspire more than ordinary industry on his birthdate, in appreciation of his own forgetfulness of self on that bitterly cold anniversary day, February 22, 1778, when he and his little army of 11,000 men were going through a winter of suffering and deprivation at Valley Forge.

Stiffer Penalty for Tire Thieves

BUCYRUS city council has passed an ordinance stiffening the penalty for theft of tires, or any other accessory "necessary in the use, control, repair or operation of a motor vehicle."

The penalty prescribed in the new ordinance is a fine of from $100 to $500, or imprisonment from three to six months.

This action may be regarded as recognition that tire-stealing is no longer a petty offense, punishable on a basis of money value. Theft of tires is now tantamount to stealing the entire automobile, for it just as effectively removes transportation facilities from the victim, and punishment should be in accord with this estimate of value.

Law enforcement agencies and insurance companies are recommending that motorists make a notation of the serial numbers of their tires to file for reference, and for identification in the event of theft. These numbers may also be filed with the insuring company so they can be promptly supplied to the police if tires are stolen.

Shifting To War Production

SMALL manufacturers who are discouraged by their plants being idle, or threatened with idleness, will finally come out all right, according to view expressed by Floyd B. Odlum, economic adviser to the War Production Board.

He urges worried business men to hold fast their organizations and keep them alive until the government gets around to them. He expects most of them to be enlisted in new production. It is mainly a matter of adjustment. "Thousands upon thousands of plants," he says, "must yet be shifted from their normal business to war work. Smaller plants are being shifted at the rate of several thousand a month." In this procedure new opportunities are continually opening up.

It is hard for the owners and employes of stricken plants to be cheerful in the face of shut-downs, but with patience and alertness to new opportunities they can be woven into the new production system. This system needs them almost as much as they need it, and the big national job can't be done till all industrial wheels are turning.

Belated Decision Points Way

AN EXCESS PROFITS case from the last war has only now reached the point of final decision—but it comes opportunely.

The Supreme Court announces that the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation had a right to claim 22 per cent on 13 contracts. The verdict, in which three of the nine justices did not for technical reasons participate, represented only four affirmative votes, but that doesn't affect the result.

The most interesting thing about it, however, is the practical comment contained in the decision. All our wars, the court observed, "have provided opportunities for profiteering, and they have been too often scandalously seized." It is not the court's duty, it says, to "protect the nation against profiteering," but it points out the congress has ample power for that purpose.

Perhaps it can be assumed now that congress will make use of such power.

Advised To Watch Sugar Price

AN IDEA that consumers are expected to be on the lookout for unjustified price increases is seen in the suggestion of Price Administrator Henderson that complaint should be made to the storekeeper if the charge for a five-pound sack of sugar is "much more than one cent higher than in the first week of December 1941."

"Any increase much greater than that is profiteering pure and simple," he said.

Maximum retail prices will have to be set on sugar unless prices are voluntarily kept in bounds, Mr. Henderson announced.

Naturally Americans who live in towns like Punxsutawney and Walla Walla and Quemahoning and Norridgewock think that such Dutch East Indian names as Indramauy and Soerabaja and Jokyacarta and Banjuwangi are very queer.

It is interesting to note the way in which congress passes an appropriation bill for an amount that also includes a considerable number of ciphers.

Who knows, maybe restrictions on the use of sugar will also help to conserve the insulin supply.

THAT SHINING EXAMPLE

Britain Taxes War Profits 100%

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — The British government, according to important Britishers on duty in Washington, has virtually eliminated the question of "war profits." The plan also eliminates any dickering about prices the government pays for war materials. It is a simple solution. The government merely takes 100 per cent of such profits in taxation!

In fact this makes it a little too simple, but it is working, and working very satisfactorily. Plenty of headaches are expected in the adjustments which will follow the war, but those who make the decisions figure that these headaches will be as nothing compared to what would happen if they do not win the war.

PERHAPS the most satisfactory phase of the whole business is that it is a very effective deterrent to strikes. The point here is that labor does not have the excuse, in demanding higher wages, that the employers are piling up big profits and labor should have its share.

All that management is getting is what might be termed a living wage — whatever salaries the tax officials of the government decide to approve. Everything else, so to speak, is thrown in the pot for the common good, with the pious hope on the part of the individual manufacturers that it will work out all right in the end.

This does not mean that the manufacturers have turned socialists, or anything of the sort. Each has merely complied with orders from the government, keeping a weather eye peeled for some chance to put his best foot forward and come out, after the war, in a little better position than his competitor!

"Don't think for a moment that each fellow is not trying to push his own barrel," is the way one British official here put it.

ONE of the serious concerns of the government — AFTER peace comes—will be to act as referee in many battles in the days of reconversion. For a long time now everything has been conversion; the changing of plants making peacetime goods into suppliers of defense needs. But every owner of a converted plant has his own plans for getting the jump on his competitor when the time for reconverting comes.

On the tax question there is a cushion. Twenty per cent of that 100 taken by the government is earmarked, on paper at least, as a sort of readjustment fund. When peace comes there will be all sorts of appeals for tax refunds, claims for example that in calculating the 100 per cent of war profits insufficient allowance was made for depreciation of plant and machinery. It will also serve as a cushion against losses during the period of reconversion.

One can readily see that the British government will need a lot of clerks and officials to settle all these claims, once the war is over. But whatever may be the defects of the present system it does permit the cutting of a tremendous lot of red tape and the saving of an incalculable amount of man hours that under any other system might be consumed in battling over individual tax cases.

The system has a decided appeal to certain United States officials just back from studying it. They say it works well. The postponement of domestic tax battles until after the war strikes them very favorably. Britain is postponing battles that will not matter unless she wins and concentrating her efforts on winning.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Monday, Feb. 20, 1922.

John L. Lewis, president of mine workers union proposed conference with operators in effort to avoid nation-wide coal mine strike.

Daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Hartman, Prospect street.

Minister co-operated with merchants' Dollar-Day by announcing $1 fee for weddings.

Little friends attended birthday party given for Anna House at her home, 115 Blanche street.

Attendance of women at championship prize fights was arousing considerable discussion.

Otis Sowash scored high for the evening in Mystic club auction bridge tournament.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY

Saturday, Feb. 20, 1937.

Charles W. Schaeffer, 64, benefactor of crippled children, died at his home on Vennum avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe C. Hartline left for a motor trip through Florida.

Mrs. C. S. Andrews and A. J. McHugh were honored with party on birthday anniversaries by members of their Birthday club.

Paul Minich, surplus commodities director, announced that six and a half tons of grapefruit and 1,561 cans of dried beef were furnished county relief clients during January.

A. H. Mollenkamp was granted a surveying engineer's license.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Joseph Jefferson, third actor of this name in a family of actors and managers, and one of the most famous of all American comedians, was born on Feb. 20, 1829. No man in his profession was more honored for his achievements or his character.

Man About Manhattan

Television In Action

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—People who have television installations in their homes glanced at their sets and beheld Andre Kostelanetz at his desk quietly accepting telephone orders for defense bonds.

The man who conducts symphony orchestras, studies birds, and is married to Lily Pons transacted $3,800 worth of business in the interests of democracy before his allotted 15 minutes were up.

IT WORKED like this. As his image was flashed on the screen a radio voice explained that Mr. Kostelanetz would accept orders by telephone—it was in plain sight—form anybody. He gave the number you were to call, and then you had the privilege of seeing Mr. Kostelanetz lift the receiver and carry on his conversation with you.

One of the calls was from a gentleman whose name was Levin. "I'll take a thousand dollar bond," he boomed into the telephone, "on one condition."

"What's that?" Kostelanetz boomed back.

"That you get me two tickets to hear your wife sing tomorrow night. I can't get any."

Mr. Kostelanetz thought swiftly. Lily Pons was making her final appearance of the season at the Met. She was singing in "The Barber of Seville." Tickets were scarce but customers with thousand dollar bills to spend ought not to be elbowed out of the picture for want of a few tickets.

"It's a deal," cried Andre—and another thousand bucks dropped into the till.

Later Mr. Levin called on Mr. Kostelanetz, got his tickets, and spent an elegant evening at the opera.

SHORTLY after this Kostelanetz hurried over to his office at the Columbia Broadcasting company, where another adventure awaited him. A man whose office is three doors from his own and who has broadcast shortwave to Holland for months thrust his head through the doors and said, "Hello, Andre, I'm your cousin."

Though operating in proximity for months, they had never met. The man's name was Person, a refugee from Holland who got out just as the Germans came in. Generations earlier the Kostelanetz family had split up over a quarrel, one branch moving from St. Petersburg to Holland. This was the modern representation of that family.

Kostelanetz, a busy man these days, moves shortly to Detroit for a concert with Oscar Levant and the Detroit symphony. Later he appears in Cleveland, Washington, Birmingham and San Francisco conducting the symphony orchestras representing those metropolitan centers. Though he and his wife both have long been famous, they had never recorded together until last month. The result was a joint album which Columbia has titled "A Pons-Kostelanetz Concert," and which includes the numbers most often requested of them on their concert tours.

Timely Editorial

Quints Lose Dr. Dafoe.

Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe's resignation as physician to the Dionne quintuplets retires him from a position which has kept him before the public for nearly eight years. His success in delivering the five infants, and in tending them until now that they are five big little girls almost eight years old, made him the most celebrated "country doctor" in the world.

The controversies that arose between him and the Dionne parents have no bearing on the chief point his resignation suggests. Dr. Dafoe's services to the Quints speak highly for the competency of average general practitioners of medicine in Canada. Much the same is said, since the circumstances, are similar, for average general doctors in the United States.—Detroit News.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Policy Board of Elder Statesmen, Suggested as Wartime Measure

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—In 1937 Franklin Roosevelt raised one of the most controversial issues of his nine years in office—the contention that older men were not qualified to serve on the Supreme Court of the United States.

That issue precipitated weeks of congressional debate and literally tore the country apart. It split the Democratic party, and some of the wounds from that battle still have not healed.

During the Supreme Court fight, the authors of this column published a book called "The Nine Old Men" which made it quite clear that for better or for worse we concurred with the president that older justices should give way to young men, just as army and navy officers are required to retire after reaching the age of 64.

And having sided vigorously with Roosevelt in the Supreme Court fight we cannot be accused of inconsistency when we state that we think it is equally prejudicial to the public good for older men to retain important cabinet positions—especially in time of war.

A Supreme Court justice has vitally important decisions to make. But he has weeks in which to make them. He can discuss the issues pro and con with his colleagues if necessary over a period of months.

However, a secretary of state, war or navy in wartime must make decisions affecting the security of 130,000,000 people and must make those decisions in hours or even minutes. Therefore, if President Roosevelt believes older men are not qualified to make much more deliberate legal decisions, then even more are old men unqualified to make immediate wartime decisions affecting the safety of the nation.

The Four Old Men.

AT PRESENT, the president has in his cabinet four men over seventy or in their late sixties holding important wartime positions. They are:

Henry L. Stimson, 75, secretary of war.

Cordell Hull, 70, secretary of state.

Frank Knox, 68, secretary of navy.

Jesse Jones, 68, secretary of commerce and in charge of war loans for rubber, aluminum and tin which may mean defeat or victory.

These men are among the president's closest friends and supporters. Some have been with him a long time. They are men of great distinction, dignity and charm. But if the president is correct that older men cannot function as efficiently, then all the more certainly men around seventy have not the physical strength or alertness to prosecute an all-out war against the most alert, ruthless and resourceful enemies this country has ever faced.

Furthermore, whether the president was right or wrong in his argument regarding the age of Supreme Court justices, it remains a fact that some of his older cabinet members have made mistakes of judgment regarding our relations with France and China, which if committed by regular army officers would have been court martial offenses in any other administration.

Elder Statesmen.

THEREFORE, we suggest that the president be consistent with his Supreme Court theories and elevate his older cabinet officers to a Board of Elder Statesmen.

For instance, he might take a leaf from the book of Bernard Baruch who did such a bang-up job as head of the War Industries Board in the last war. Time after time Baruch has been offered an important defense job in Washington; but time after time he has refused. Baruch is 72, says he is not as strong as he used to be, contends he can be far more useful to the war effort if he remains independent, drawing no salary, but free to criticize and make suggestions. So once a week Baruch comes to Washington, drops in on his old friends in the war, navy departments, and the OPM and "gives them hell."

As a result he has made himself one of the most useful men in the entire United States.

Equally useful could be a Board of Elder Statesmen composed of Henry L. Stimson, Cordell Hull, Jesse Jones and Frank Knox. Add to them, Bernard Baruch with his wartime experience and Charles Evans Hughes with his experience as secretary of state and chief justice of the United States, and the nation would have a board of advisers completely independent of politics, completely free to criticize anything which went wrong, capable of making suggestions to the president himself.

Elder Statesman Hull.

CHAIRMAN of such a board might be Cordell Hull. Mr. Hull will go down as one of our greatest secretaries of state. His job on reducing tariffs and pioneering for trade treaties alone will ensure him of a place in history.

In recent months, however, Mr. Hull has lacked some of his old fire and energy. Close friends say that the war has depressed him, and not for months have they seen him smile.

Perhaps it was this nervousness and fatigue which caused him to make the unfortunate statement about the "so-called" Free French, a statement for which he subsequently apologized and which was a serious rebuff to the independent governments of France, Greece, Jugoslavia and all the others which we are encouraging to resist Hitler.

Perhaps fatigue also was behind Mr. Hull's veto of Colonel Donovan's plan to send a second Colonel Lawrence to make friends with the Arab chieftains in French North Africa, especially around Dakar. Donovan had commissioned Colonel Charles Sweeney, familiar with the Arab tribes, to go to Dakar, and do what Colonel T. E. Lawrence did when he turned the tide against Turkey in the last war.

But Secretary Hull flatly refused to give a passport to Colonel Sweeney. He said that his mission, even though secret and not officially connected with the United States, might offend Vichy.

Today, Secretary Hull, tired and ill, is taking several months' vacation. And like most conscientious public servants who have served their country long and well, he has little money or resources to fall back on.

Therefore what could be more beneficial to the American people than for Cordell Hull to sit on an Elder Statesman policy board, with salary, without having to make a hundred decisions a day, and give the country the benefit of his detached, long-range vision—while younger men run the fast-moving machinery of our diplomacy.

(Another Merry-Go-Round column on other members of the "Four Old Men" will follow soon.)

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—By passing the bill giving themselves the option of being blanketed into the civil service retirement act, congressmen have opened the door to an avalanche of criticism, ridicule and abuse. In an election year, that's bad.

It's so bad, in fact, that a repeal move is snowballing along, with a lot of sound and fury in both house and senate. Whether a large number of congressmen sincerely think they passed a bad law (many members were not present either time the measure went through the house, although the vote in the senate was a matter of record, and one congressman declared not one-tenth of the house membership was present when the bill originally was brought up) or whether they have heard the first rumblings of a storm from opponents who will face them at the polls is a matter for conjecture.

There is one thing, however: I have never seen a bill passed about which there has been so much misunderstanding and misstatement.

IN the first place, the amendment bringing congress under the retirement law is merely an extension of the already existing pension law which now covers 1,250,000 federal employes. The only way that it differs is that members of congress have to serve five years before they are eligible for participation and they have the option of going into it or staying out. If they go in, they have to contribute to the retirement fund 5% of their salary or $500 annually.

If their participation in the act is unsound from an actuarial standpoint, then the whole act is unsound.

But let's look at some other phases of this new law. The library of congress says that from the very beginning of congress to now, only 35 percent of the members have ever served more than two terms. In other words, there would never be more than 152 members of the house eligible for participation. There are at present about 80 senators who have served more than one term and would be eligible.

THE law does have a couple loopholes that would allow present members of retirement age to pay a small premium and retire with an annuity—but civil service, which has charge of the act, says that such statements as the widely circulated one that a member could pay $1.40 premium and retire immediately at $4,100 a year is just silly. For example, says the commission, a congressman now 62, with five years of service, could retire and receive about $500 a year, with payment of only a small premium.

If congress had voted into the bill a clause that no member of the 77th congress could participate in the act unless he should be re-elected to the 78th, there probably wouldn't have been much furore.

Civil service estimates that the annual cost of the act as applied to congress will never be more than $80,000 a year. Even if all 531 members of congress participated, the civil service commission says the total cost would be only about $500,000 a year—and congress then would be paying into the fund $275,000 a year from salaries.

"He saved the day . . . we didn't dare go to sleep with thirteen in bed!"

A Farmer's Diary

They'll Carry On

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I STOOD at the edge of a hillside field below a woods, and watched an old man feed his sheep. I saw him smile as one large lamb grew bold enough to rise on both hind feet and eat without invitation from the tin pail in his hand. He stroked the animal's muzzle.

He was a tall, stooped man, with a heavy white mustache. His hair was white beneath his old black hat. The sheep were clustered about their trough and he stood and watched them, interestedly—so that he did not see me until I spoke.

"That's a fine bunch of sheep," I said in greeting. Startled, he straightened up and looked at me out of faded, twinkling gray eyes.

"Not so bad, are they? I reckon they'll tip the scales at 90 but I'm not sellin', with wool at over 50 cents. It won't go beggin' in the spring. I have an even hundred and the ewes are in right condition for lambing. In three more weeks there'll be some young 'uns." His kindly gaze travelled down the line of animals at the trough.

"Sheep are good stock for a hilly farm like mine," he said. "I like to putter with 'em. Seems like it don't take much to keep 'em satisfied . . . all they want is pasture and a warm dry shed in winter. I'm careful what I feed mine, though—and I keep them clean. They won't thrive on tainted food and they get sick when they get dirty. Nothin's worse'n a sick sheep unless it's one that's been nigh scared to death by dogs. It's like anything else on a farm, though—somebody's got to take an interest in 'em if they amount to anything."

"How many acres have you?" I inquired.

"You might not be believin' me, but I'm still farmin' 80 acres all myself. I'll be 84, come May. Sara—that's my wife—is 80, too. We've lived here nigh 60 years, now—our two sons have good jobs in the city for more'n 35 years. We've seen this neighborhood made over nearly five times in that spell. We keep ten young cattle, a pen o' shoats, a flock of 400 hens, and a dozen hives of bees.

"I reckon I'm a mite too old to join the navy, but I can tend the sheep and raise wool for uniforms — and Sara knits more'n her share for Red Cross. Work that a person likes won't hurt nobody as long as he can do it. We're goin' to stay right here and be glad we're farmers. I guess we're worth more here than we could be anywhere else."

AUTO MAKERS QUIET ABOUT '194X MODEL'

But In Midst of Conversion There's Wonder About Post-War Output.

(Editor's note: Even as they revamp their industry to make armament, the men who made America's cars can't help reflecting on what the eventual change back will involve. In the following article, Wide World Automotive Editor David J. Wilkie tells some aspects of the problem.)

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT—(Wide World)—The men who formerly made the nation's motorcars and now are making armament are not talking much about what will happen after the world-engulfing war is over.

For two weeks they have been watching factories that for decades produced passenger automobiles, stripped of all the better known equipment — drill presses, multiple-ton hammers, grinding tools, conveyor systems and assembly lines.

They have seen new machine tools, the strange instruments that turn out anti-aircraft cannon, aircraft engine parts, huge pieces that go into the assembling of military tanks and scores of other units of equipment, moved in and immediately put into operation.

In some authoritative industry quarters it has been said that the post-war "re-conversion" task will be twice as great as the one currently under way, not only because machinery is being reconditioned for the war job, but because much of it is becoming dislocated, much will deteriorate from standing in snow-covered fields and because time will be needed to determine the type of vehicle suited to the post-war economy.

Right now the former automobile manufacturers refer to the next passenger car to be made as the "194X model"; it is their way of saying they don't know when they again will be in production on automobiles.

Great as may be the "re-conversion" job in the immediate post-war period the return to active competition among the car builders undoubtedly will hasten its processes.

One prominent labor official, disagreeing with the management suggestion that returning to peace-time activities will involve a time-consuming re-tooling task, said this week:

"You'll see the wildest scramble to get back into car production immediately after the war that the industry ever has experienced; it won't take nearly so long as many persons believe because there is going to be an enormous demand for cars and the manufacturer first to resume output will have a distinct advantage."

Some of the plant interiors now are barren and ghost-like; others present a picture in contrasts, one section already at work on arms output, one section cleared and awaiting new machine tools and another jammed with the presses, hammers, grinders and other electric and hydraulic goliaths that formerly stamped out fenders, shaped rods and shafts, ground gears and otherwise contributed to the mass output of automobiles.

You wonder as you observe the demolition of overhead conveyors and assembly lines, the removal of practically every vestige of the automobile producing equipment down to the bare walls, floor and roof, just why new buildings wouldn't have been quite as economical and perhaps saved the time required to clear the old ones. Moreover, you suggest, the car industry's physical equipment could have been left intact for the post-war era.

The answer, briefly, is that there wasn't time — after Pearl Harbor—to erect that many new buildings and get them into arms production.

In Legion's Drum Corps Minstrel Cast

The "Drum Corps Jamboree," staged by the drum corps of Earle McVey post of the American Legion for Legionnaires and their auxiliary Wednesday night had all the elements of an old fashioned minstrel with end men in black-face, a male hula dancer and a patriotic tableau. A second performance will be given at Shelby high school auditorium Monday night under the auspices of Shelby post. Miss Bette Wehinger, drum corps majorette, is shown top right in the costume she wore as "Miss Liberty" in the patriotic finale. E. B. Fairman, top left, appeared as a Hawaiian dancer, one of the "surprise features" of the performance. Pictured at the bottom are the four end men in their bright-colored satins. Left to right they are, E. C. Fuller, D. W. Kyle, C. W. Zediker and D. A. McCullough.

THEATERS

Air Epic.

"Captains of the Clouds," a brilliant technicolor epic of the air, starring James Cagney opens Saturday at the Ohio. Filmed in Canada the picture presents an action-packed story of Canada's heroes of the air against the Axis. Specifically it deals with men from the bush country, lakes and forests of northern Canada who enlist to fly against the Luftwaffe. Cagney plays a hi-jacking lone eagle who steals business right out from under the noses of the other pilots' planes. The other men set out to "get" him. Brenda Marshall and Dennis Morgan top the supporting cast that includes Alan Hale, Reginald Gardiner and Reginald Denny.

Gangsters vs. Gestapo.

Ex-gangsters battle the Gestapo in "All Through the Night," Humphrey Bogart's exciting new feature opening Saturday at the Madison. Bogart as the leader uses the same tactics he employed against rival mobs in prohibition days when he tries to solve the murder of a banker at a time when he is accused of the crime himself. Kaaren Verne who appeared in "Underground," and a stellar cast including Conrad Veidt, Judith Anderson, Jane Darwell and Peter Lorre support Bogart.

Military Romance.

Carole Landis plays the title role in "Cadet Girl," opening today at the Ritz. George Montgomery plays opposite Miss Landis in this story of romance at West Point. "Wanderers of the West," with Tom Keene and Slim Andrews is the second attraction.

Romantic Feature.

"The Man In Her Life," Loretta Young's romantic feature set against the capitals of Europe, opens Saturday at the Park. Miss Young plays a dancer with dreams of captivating the Old World with her art and the men who aid her career are Conrad Veidt, Dean Jagger and John Sheppard. Eugenie Leontovich, who appeared on the stage in "Tovarich," has a featured role. Gene Autry in "Sierra Sue," is the second attraction.

Action Story.

"Bombay Clipper," with William Gargan and Irene Hervey is the attraction today at the Majestic. "Riding the Sunset Trail," with Tom Keene is the co-feature. Starting Saturday the theater will show Clark Gable's starring picture, "Honky Tonk," and "Riders of the Badlands," with Charles Sterrett and Russell Haydn.

HAS 'SCORCHED EARTH' SYSTEM

PEORIA, Ill. —(U.P.)— The WPA is using a scorched earth system of its own invention to rush completion of a new airport which may be needed soon for defense.

Work on the runways was impeded because sub-zero weather had frozen the ground 30 inches deep, making excavation difficult.

WPA workers covered the runway areas with straw to a depth of four feet, dusted ¾ inch of sand over the whole, and then set the straw on fire.

The straw smoldered for some time, thawing the earth to a depth of 18 inches. As a result, the airport is expected to be completed far ahead of schedule.

SMARTER NOW

NEW WILMINGTON, Pa.—(U.P.)—Fraternity men at Westminster college are getting smarter.

Records show that for the first time in ten years fraternity men's grade averages are higher than the non-fraternity group.

Women students proved more intelligent than men, according to grade-figures, and seniors smarter than other classes.

LIBRARY LIST HAS 'ALMANAC FOR AMERICANS'

Thornton Points Out That Every Day Has Events of Historical Importance.

Every day in the year, not just the holidays, has historical importance, Willis Thornton points out in his "Almanac For Americans," now on display at the Mansfield Public Library.

Thornton tells a day-by-day story of the United States in his new book which is studded with memorable American deeds and illustrated by James Daugherty.

The total picture of America's warplanes and her growing system of aerial warfare is given in "Wings of Defense," by Captain Burr Leyson. The author has marshaled his experiences as civil and military pilot together with his detailed observation of development in this field and the result is a book that all readers will find absorbing and informative.

GREAT MEN AND WOMEN OF POLAND, edited by Stephen P. Mizwa contains the lives of thirty Polish men and women—many of them international figures, others famous mainly within their native land. Chopin, Copernicus, Kosciuszko and Marie Curie are a few of the subjects included within its scope.

OTHER NON-FICTION: FLEMISH PAINTING IN THE XVIIth CENTURY by Michel; HE'S IN THE ARMY NOW by Baumer, ON GUARD by Sizoo, POCKET MILNE by Milne; GETTING ACQUAINTED WITH AGRICULTURE by Deyoe and Ulrich; FESSENDEN, BUILDER OF TOMORROWS by Fessenden, PLASTICS IN ENGINEERING by Delmonte; ELEMENTS OF QUANTUM MECHANICS by Dushman; THERMO-DUNAMICS by Fermi; PLAIN WORDS ABOUT VENEREAL DISEASE by Panan and Vonderlehr, CONGENITAL MALFORMATIONS by Murphy.

LONELY PARADE by Fannie Hurst is the fascinating story of three powerful women, pioneers in the "career" field, who lived together in a fabulous New York house, who achieved worldly success in social work, the fashion world and the theater—and who yet wound up leading the "lonely parade." Their dramatic story is told against the panoramic background of the first twenty years of this century.

ALONG THESE STREETS by Sturthers Burt is the story of Felix Macalister, anthropologist, who left the jungles of Panama to accept the family mansion and fortune that awaited him in Philadelphia—on condition that he live there. And, although he fell under the spell of the sprawling old town, there were many things about it that both puzzled and alarmed him—especially the young women who began to play an important part in his life

YOU GO YOUR WAY by Katharine Brush is the account of Connie and Bill Howell: Marriage and how it went from bad to worse and back again and all because of Connie and her idea about things. This is a novel in the mood of "Young Man of Manhattan." It is gay, light-hearted and full of fun OTHER FICTION: ONE ENDURING PURPOSE by Lieferant; BETWEEN THE ACTS by Wolfe; CORPSE IN THE SNOWMAN by Day-Lewis.

Prospect Pupils and 'Cuddle Toys'

Pupils in the Prospect school are doing their part in the nation's war program by knitting garments and making "cuddle toys" for distribution by the Red Cross. Here three of the pupils are shown with some of the articles they have made. Left to right, they are Shirley Jean Brigham, Shirley Jean Scott and Eugene Griesbach. Eugene is among the several boys in the school who learned to knit. He has just completed knitting a sweater. The pupils receive instructions in cutting patterns for the toys in art classes and finish most of the articles outside school hours. They have made approximately 100 toys.

RETIRES

Monocled Hobo Ends 56 Years of Globe Trotting.

MIAMI, Fla.—(U.P.)—A 70-year-old monocle-wearing hobo named Sandy J. Ledger, who has crossed the Atlantic 42 times and has held such jobs as circus peanut vender and typesetter for the Times of London, has announced his 56 years of globe tramping are over.

He is not a bum, but a hobo. A hobo, he said, is a rover who works—a bum is just a bum. Ledger declared he has always worked—in his time he has been a weaver in Massachusetts, a longshoreman in France, a bull puncher on a cattle boat, a compositor on the Times of London, The London Daily Mail, and the Paris edition of the New York Herald Tribune.

"You can't go on wandering forever, not at my age," Ledger said as he remarked that he had decided to settle in Miami which he described as "one of the finest cities in the world."

Ledger, who is a printer by trade, claims the distinction of being the first North American printer to print a newspaper at sea.

HOSPITAL GETS O.K. FOR TESTS

Approval of General hospital as a pre-marital blood testing laboratory was announced yesterday by Dr. Burr M. Hathaway, hospital pathologist, following receipt of a notification from Dr. R. H. Markwith, state health director in Columbus.

Dr Hathaway said the Mansfield institution had been giving these tests on a temporary approval basis since Oct. 30 at the rate of approximately 10 a week.

Administered are Kahn and Kline tests which detect venereal disease The tests are required by state law before the granting of a marriage license.

SEEKS COUNCIL O. K. ON STREET ASSESSMENT

Board Ends Task of Setting Up Charges For Various 1941 Improvements.

Approval of assessments made against owners of property abutting seven improvement projects of city streets and sewers during 1941 will be asked of city council at its next meeting.

R. R. Black, clerk of council, said today that the board of assessors had filed their assessments in his office and that they would be presented to council.

Serving on the assessment board were William J. Beer, jr., A. L. Allen and Dimon Herring. They completed their work within the past week and filed their reports in Black's office.

Sixty-nine property-owners will be asked to pay a total assessment of more than $11,000 for the paving of one street and the construction of sanitary sewers on six other streets.

Total assessments are as follows: Bowman street, repaved with asphalt, five property-owners to pay $2,335; Oakwood drive, sanitary sewer, six owners to pay $900; Fifth street, sanitary sewer, ten owners to pay $1,183; Linden road north of Maple street, sanitary sewer, ten owners to pay $1,260; Linden road and Paxford place, sanitary sewer, fourteen owners to pay $2,044; Lawnsdale avenue, sanitary sewer, eight owners to pay $668; and Poplar street-Sloane avenue, sanitary sewer, sixteen owners to pay $2,721.

The assessors spent three weeks inspecting the various improvements and figuring the benefit received by the property-holders. After council has taken action on the assessments, they are advertised and property-owners are given a specified interval in which to make objections if they have grievances.

RECEIVE FUNDS

City, County Given $4,374 In State Relief Money.

Mansfield and Richland county today had been allotted a total of $4,374 in state funds to help them pay their relief bills for January.

The county will receive $2,393 while $1,981 will go to the city. The allocation represents half of the total relief bill for the month in the city and county. The January costs were up $667 over December in the county area.

In contrast, the state costs were down $9,600 from December and amounted to $1,317,918 The number of cases, however, increased from 43,351 in December to 46,471 last month.

SHARP DECLINE

Sales Tax Collections In County Drop In February.

Richland county sales tax receipts dropped sharply during the first week of February while the state generally was showing increased revenue, State Treasurer Don H. Ebright reported today.

In Richland county, collections for the week amounted to $9,390 as compared with $11,736 for the corresponding week of 1941. Total revenue for the first five weeks amounts to $52,964, nearly $3,000 less than for the same period last year.

Most of the increase shown in the state during the first week of this month was in the counties with the greatest population, including Cuyahoga, Franklin, Lucas and Mahoning. The gain represented increased buying of clothing and food in the larger cities where business has been helped by war contracts.

"Me, I'm an Ochlophile"
"Yes, ochlophile...that's a word I picked up in a crossword puzzle. Means somebody who likes to have crowds around. After all, what retailer doesn't like crowds?"

1. "You'll find a steady stream of customers in this store every day...customers who are watching the family budget more carefully than ever, now that we're at war, and watching newspaper ads more carefully, too, in order to save money and time."

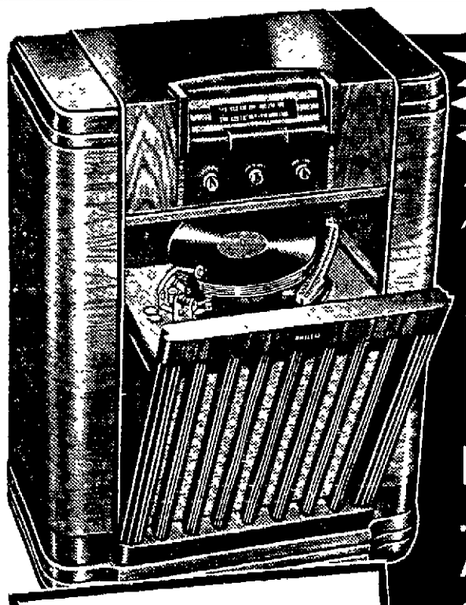

2. "Every chance I get, I tell manufacturers' representatives how I feel about newspaper advertising...how everybody in town reads the daily paper, and the ads in the paper, too, whether other kinds of advertising reach them or not."

3. "I tell them that newspaper ads have always been a swell investment for me...and for all other retailers in town who amount to anything. So why shouldn't manufacturers take full advantage of this medium, too? After all, their business depends on sales through my store and others like it."

4. "Why wouldn't it be smart, I ask them, to move their goods off my shelves with the kind of advertising that brings in crowds of customers? I guess other retailers have been making the same point...that must be one reason why manufacturers are doing so much newspaper advertising these days."

That's what one successful retailer has to say about newspaper advertising and how it works. Are you getting all of this local support you deserve? Take a tip from this happy ochlophile and remind your manufacturers that they can produce more sales for their retailers...and themselves...by advertising in local newspapers.

MISS MARGARET KERR WEDS ALAN A. DARE

Rev. Peter Young Performs Single Ring Ceremony for Couple Thursday Evening Before Altar of First Presbyterian Church.

BEFORE the altar of the First Presbyterian church Thursday at 7 p. m. Miss Margaret Barbara Kerr, daughter of Mrs. Thomas A. Kerr, 252 Park avenue west, became the bride of Alan Arthur Dare, Parkwood boulevard, son of Mrs. Metta Dare, Lakewood. Rev. Peter Young performed the single ring ceremony in a setting of palms, ferns, huckleberry and peach gladioli illuminated by the glow of fourteen lighted tapers.

For her wedding the former Miss Kerr wore a wave green crepe street-length frock with green and brown accessories. Her only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom, and she wore a shoulder corsage of gardenias and Talisman roses. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Huge of Bucyrus attended the couple. Mrs. Huge was attired in a navy blue crepe redingote with matching accessories and a corsage of yellow roses and acacia. The pearls she wore were a gift of the bride.

Mrs. Fred Lewis, organist, played nuptial music during and preceding the ceremony. Some of her selections were "Because," Beethoven's "Minuet," "I Love You Truly" and the traditional wedding marches. Mrs. Kerr appeared at her daughter's wedding in a black crepe street-length frock with beige accessories and a shoulder corsage of pink camellias. Mrs. Dare was attired in a navy crepe frock with matching accessories and a corsage of gardenias and acacia.

Following the ceremony a reception was held for 15 guests at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. Luncheon was served at a long table decorated with white snapdragons and carnations and lighted tapers and centered with a three-tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bridal couple.

After the reception the couple left for a two-week wedding trip in Miami, Fla. For traveling the bride wore an aqua tailored suit with brown accessories. Out-of-town guests in attendance at the wedding and reception were Mrs. Metta Dare, Mr. and Mrs. William Saling and Gordon Rice of Lakewood, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Russell of Akron and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Huge of Bucyrus.

Mrs. Dare was graduated from Mansfield Senior high school and Northwestern university where she was affiliated with Chi Omega social sorority. She is employed at the Citizens National bank. Mr. Dare was graduated from a Cleveland high school and Miami university where he was a member of Delta Tau Delta social fraternity and Delta Sigma Pi, honorary commerce fraternity. He is now employed as manager of the Firestone Auto Supply store. The couple will reside temporarily with the bride's mother upon their return.

Wedding In East Of Interest to Mansfielders

Announcement has been received here of the marriage of Miss Louise Mell Douglass, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Stephen A. Douglass, of Paterson, N. J., and John Bernard Cunin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. Cunin, of Alliance. Dr. Douglass is the son of the late Judge S. M. Douglass, of Mansfield. The wedding took place at noon on Feb. 14 in Valley View sanatorium at Paterson, where the bride's father is superintendent.

The former Miss Douglass was attired in a suit of Caribbean blue wool and jersey. She carried white orchids. Miss Ellen Lee, of Mt. Vernon, was maid of honor. Best man for Mr. Cunin was Stephen A. Douglass, jr.

Father Leander, OFM, officiated for the ceremony. Reception was held at the home immediately after the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunin will make their home in Cuyahoga Falls. Mrs. Cunin was graduated from Mount Union college at Alliance. She is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority. A graduate of Mount Union college and Syracuse university, the bridegroom is associated with the Firestone Tire and Rubber company at Akron. He belongs to Alpha Tau Omega fraternity and Beta Alpha Psi, national honorary accounting society.

Banquet Held By Wittenberg Alumni Group

Dr. Reed Edgar Tulloss, president of Wittenberg college, announced the unconditional return of the college to an accredited list of the Association of American Universities when he spoke early this week at the banquet of the Wittenberg Alumni which was held at St. Matthew's Lutheran church. This action signifies that scholastic credits obtained by Wittenberg students automatically will be accepted by any university or graduate school in the country.

The following officers were unanimously elected during the business session which followed the banquet: President, Charles Sharrock, of Ashland; vice president, Ray Jenkins, of Mansfield; secretary, Mrs. Katherine McMichael, of Mansfield; treasurer, Dr. M. D. Harnly, of Mansfield; song leader, Rev. C. B. A. Stacy, Mt. Zion, Lucas. Nominating committee was comprised of Rev. H L Gilbert, Mrs. Nellie Long Gates and Virgil Moffett, of Ashland.

Patriotic colors were used for the table decorations. Principal speaker for the evening was Dr. C. A. Claussen, of Springfield, professor of history at Wittenberg college, whose subject was "The Scandinavian Countries." Music was presented by an ensemble from John Simpson Junior high school under the direction of A LeMoine Derr, a Wittenberg alumnus Miss Thelma Reed, who attended the Wittenberg Conservatory of Music, entertained with piano selections. Homer McFadden, of Springfield, formerly of Mansfield, who is president of the National Wittenberg Alumni Association, extended greetings. Dorner Keyser, Springfield, national alumni secretary, also spoke briefly.

Alumni were present from Mansfield, Bellville Lucas, Shelby, Springfield and Tiro.

Practical Wartime Fashions

Slacks go to town with our modern defense workers, who find them the most practical costume for air-raid warden patrols, wartime training of all kinds. These, recommended for Red Cross trainees, are of gray flannel, well tailored on masculine lines. The shirt is navy gabardine, with convertible collar. Slacks also come in navy flannel, with scarlet blouse. Also good for country wear. The "Churchill coverall" is a practical wartime fashion for housework or ODC tasks. It costs about $2 to make in denim, and is easy for even a novice to whip up in an afternoon, with the aid of a pattern of simplicity.

Birthday Party Given For Bobby Denig

Honoring her son, Bobby, on his eighth birthday anniversary, Mrs. Robert W. Denig entertained a group of youngsters at her home, 284 Superior street, Wednesday. Games were enjoyed with prizes going to Alden Speakman, Brother and Louis King. Bobby was recipient of many nice gifts from his friends.

Others present besides the prize winners were Chuckey Speakman, Glenn and Marlenna Lang. When lunch was served the table was centered with a large birthday cake baked by Bobby's aunt, Mrs. Ralph Derrer

Party Given For Mrs. Dent

Dessert-bridge party was given last evening by Mrs. Jacob Schmidt at her home, 591 Grant street, in honor of Mrs. Robert Dent, nee Helen Furry, whose marriage was announced recently. The 12 guests presented Mrs. Dent with a shower of aluminum gifts.

Floral centerpiece and other table decorations were in red and white. The evening was spent playing Seven-Up. Prizes were won by Miss Eunice Stough and the honoree. Mrs. Dent was recipient of a special gift from the hostess.

MRS. JOHN ANGLE TO HEAD WOMEN'S GUILD

Officers of Women's Guild of First Presbyterian Church Announced at Birthday Luncheon Held on Thursday Afternoon.

MRS. JOHN ANGLE was elected president of the Women's Guild of the First Presbyterian church at the birthday-luncheon of the group held in the church parlors Thursday afternoon. Other officers named were Mrs. H. H. Carter, first vice president; Mrs. D. M. Given, secretary, and Mrs. O. I. Alverson, treasurer. Mrs. Angle will fill the unexpired term of Mrs. H. L. Lanehart, who resigned the presidency because she is leaving to make her home in Washington, D. C.

One hundred and fifty members of the guild and their guests attended the luncheon which was served at 1 o'clock. Tables were decorated to represent the twelve months of the year and the members having birthdays in the month corresponding with the decorations were seated at these tables. Mrs. H. L. Lanehart conducted the business session and announced the World Day of Prayer service which was held this afternoon at the United Presbyterian church. She also announced the musical tea being held at the church March 1 at 4 p. m. by members of the Business and Professional Women's Glee club. Anyone interested in attending this tea should contact Miss Myrtle Booth.

Mrs. E. C. Chase and Mrs. J. G. Wallace proposed making a contribution to the national board of missions in memory of the late Mrs. D. J. Meese, better known to Mansfielders as "Mother Meese." A dramatization, "The Woman Who Turned Back," was given by members of the Bethany circle. Taking part in the play were Mrs. Sam Campbell, Mrs. Merle Smith, Mrs. F. H. Chorman and Mrs. Roy Gale. Mrs. George Ingram was in charge of the program.

Circle meetings will be held on March 5. Mrs. Alverson will entertain members of Circle one at her home at 116 Rowland avenue. Circle two will hold a meeting at the home of Mrs. R. J. Hammer, 872 Dickson parkway. Mrs. R. C. Stanton, 141 Marion avenue, will be hostess for the meeting of Circle three. Inferiority Complex Ruins Girl's Life

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

"I'm married to a wonderful husband and we have a lovely son. I'm not bad looking; we have a nice home in a good neighborhood, and I dress as well and even better than some of my neighbors. I mention these things because, being blessed with them, you'd think I would be happy, but I'm not.

"I'm very unhappy. I need help desperately, for my mental safety. I have the worst case of inferiority complex that I've ever heard or read about. I lay awake nights crying, pitying myself wishing I knew how to make friends. I have been thinking about suicide. Then I begin to wonder whether I'm going crazy and suppose I should do something to harm my baby?

"I've heard there's something wrong with a person who hasn't even one friend. Well, Miss Fairfax, that's my predicament. It isn't that I haven't opportunities, but I don't know how to make friends. I'm always saying the wrong things at the wrong times. Would it help if I went to a phychiatrist? Do they treat people for inferiority complex? Maybe they could teach me how to have poise so that I wouldn't crumble up every time someone speaks to me, and teach me how to laugh so that I could enjoy living. What would you advise?

"SICK IN MIND."

If you know of a reliable psychiatrist you would probably be helped materially. A poor one is worse than nothing. Your family physician might help you or direct you to the specialist you evidently require.

You will probably be indignant with me when I say that a good many of these cases of so-called "inferiority complex" actually have their roots in an innate feeling of superiority. Such a person expects every one he meets to do all the work of getting acquainted, and to lay the foundation of friendship. The egoist, who takes refuge in a feeling of inferiority, stands aloof and has a morbid pleasure in feeling unappreciated.

The remedy is to forget one's self, if possible. Unless a woman with all the blessings of my correspondent relates is physically ill, there is no reason for her morbidity. To entertain thoughts of suicide when there's a precious baby to be considered is utterly unworthy.

At the moment, there is a crying need in a world full of anguish for every pair of hands which can help. There is no better way of forgetting one's own woes than to help someone in actual need. Dozens of organizations offer opportunities for doing work for our own country and stricken Europe at the present time. The Red Cross needs recruits. Civilian Defense is enrolling thousands of women daily.

Federal, local and private projects gladly welcome willing workers. It's up to all of us with even limited time to spare to proffer our services and get busy.

In the case of my correspondent, please let me suggest that she lose not another day before getting in touch with her family physician, or that she consult a mental specialist who would give his professional opinion as to whether she requires the services of a phychiatrist or not. The late Dr. White, in charge of St. Elizabeth's hospital in Washington, cured dozens, yes hundreds, of such symptoms as my correspondent relates. His death was a tremendous loss.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, February 21.

Vigilance and precaution along all lines may turn the trends of this day into lucrative and eventful channels. While there is a sign of sudden and drastic action, possibly in connection with public or community affairs, yet there is an undercurrent of deception, trickery, fraud and intrigue.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate an active and eventful year, especially where public, group or community interests are involved. But all activities are beset with ominous circumstances calling for keen vigilance, insight, preparedness and prudence where deception, treachery, malicious and underhand, hidden and secret schemes menace.

A child born on this day while active and enterprising in some directions yet may be peculiar, unreliable, and given to expediency and deception.

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Boys and girls above the fifth grade will find two new books in the Mansfield Public Library now that will make interesting reading for book reports.

The stories are entertaining enough to make their reading a pleasure instead of an assignment. The first will be more enjoyed by boys but both boys and girls who like family stories will like the second:

THE WRATH OF MOTO, by Attilio Gatti — Arara was a pygmy. He was not yet four feet tall because he was only twelve years old but he was wise in many of the ways of the jungle. He had trained his dog to help him in hunting and he was clever and fearless. The flaming volcano, Moto, forced him into a jungle prison without his dog but twin gorillas saved his life. The whole picture of jungle life is clearly described here.

THE CABIN ON KETTLE CREEK, by May Justus—Glory and Matti lived in a mountain cabin called a "double pen" because there were two rooms in it. They went to school, helped with the work of the family, and had a great deal of fun with their chums. Both of them will be your friends too when you have read the book.

Pitfalls of Love

(A sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"I should be a most captious person, indeed, if I did not approve," I told Olga, "You have guessed perfectly what I wanted done."

"In all probability I shall have to do nothing save wait," she said. "I imagine Mary will go directly to the theater."

"I agree with you," I said. "And now I come to a more complicated matter."

I picked up the fan letter and picture Olina had left with me, and held them out to her.

"Olina said you had not seen this queer fan letter which came in her mail," I said, "but that you knew about it."

She took the letter and picture into her hands, but let them drop into her lap without looking at them. Her whole attention was focused on my face as if she were trying to read it.

"Yes, she told me that she had received a queer letter," she said, "but we were both so busy at the time that she did not show it to me.

"Is there something—alarming—about the letter?" she asked.

Asks Olga's Opinion.

"Oh, no, indeed," I said quickly, scoring myself for my clumsiness in waking her maternal alarm. "But there are two or three things about it which I do not think Olina has noted, and I am not ready to tell her about them just yet—not before I point them out to you and ask you about them.

"The only thing in the least disquieting about it," I said slowly, "is the fact that Stephen Redfield was in the room when Olina showed me the letter."

"That was her excuse for coming over as you both planned it, wasn't it?" she asked as I paused.

"Yes, it was," I answered, "and out of courtesy we were compelled to show it to him. He professed to be extremely interested, said he was sure there was a hidden message to Olina in it, and wanted to take it away with him so that he could examine it at his leisure."

"I fancy his request wasn't granted," she said.

Tells of Redfield's Copy.

"I permitted him to copy the letter, and Olina told him she would bring him a copy of the picture. But I shall make the copy of the picture myself, and leave out the particular thing I do not wish him to see.

"Of course, he may have seen something in the letter," I said, "but I received the distinct impression that he was simply indulging his exhibitionist tendencies, and wished Olina to consider him an able sleuth."

"I am inclined to agree with you," she said. "And now I suppose I would better look at the letter and picture."

She took up the letter first and read it through, then after a pause, while she looked off into space as if searching for an answer to an unspoken question, she re-read it. When she had finished she looked at me intently.

Olga Suspects Redfield.

"Of course that is all camouflage," she said, "that about seeing her from afar, and that he's someone unknown to her. Whoever wrote this knows Olina well, but either because he wishes to make a romantic impression on her, or because circumstances will not permit him to see her, or because he wishes her to help him out of some predicament, he has taken this means of attracting her attention. You don't suppose—" she stopped abrupily.

"Tell me," I urged.

"That Stephen Redfield wrote this himself, do you?"

"It would be a gesture he might make to attract her attention," I said, "but I am very sure he did not write it, as you will see when you examine the picture, and I explain to you the meaning we already have found in it."

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

"The Authority on Authorities"

USE THE LONE HONOR

After one opponent has shown great length in one or more suits, it is sound to count on his partner for outstanding length in any other suit or suits. He is the one to guard yourself against when you are running the trumps and want to make sure of not losing any tricks in that suit. Ordinarily, if you hold the three top honors, with two of them in one hand opposite the single one, you will take the first track where you have the brace, especially if you are able to finesse in either direction. But, with one opponent indicated as more likely to have the missing trump length, it is best to take the first trick in the hand which plays before him, so you leave a couple of honors over his possible holding.

Upon winning the opening trick with the spade A, East led his diamond K and South took stock. Seeing that he must lost a diamond trick, he realized he could not afford a loser in either trumps or clubs. But first he must dispose of the trumps. So he took the diamond K with his A and led the heart 5 to the A. When East discarded on that he was beaten, as there was no earthly way to keep West from a trump trick.

There should have been no question about the guess South had to make. East, having shown at least 10 and possibly 11 cards in spades and diamonds could not possibly have had more than three hearts, whereas West might have the four he did. If South had reckoned thus, and had laid down his heart Q first, he would have had West shut out in the suit. This would have left him only clubs to guess, and most good players would have counted on West for a well-guarded queen there. If South had played that way, he not only would have been sound. He would have been successful.

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the right plan for South to follow on this deal if West leads the spade 3 against his 3-No Trumps?

Help Child By Keeping Cool

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

WE PARENTS at home can help win the war by conquering ourselves. We need to keep cool heads. If we let ourselves grow panicky our children will become depressed, worried and jittery and the whole family stirred up. Our neighbors and their families will become less stable too. Every parent who, on the contrary, practices poise and inspires it in the family is doing a very patriotic service. Let us emulate our British allies in this respect.

We cannot do our daily tasks best when we let our emotions master us. We certainly can't be good companions to our children then. The more worried and excited we allow ourselves to be the more disposed to illness we and our children become.

Furthermore, the more panicky we are at home the more this feeling will carry to the sons, fathers and other relatives and loved ones in the armed forces.

We want our growing children to have as little worry and anxiety as possible and as much joy. Hope and happiness are their normal traits.

Let us parents hold our chins up and look forward to the days of peace paid for by sacrifices. Let us work and pray for faith and courage. We are not going to talk in mournful tones about bad news we hear or read nor allow ourselves ever to seem downcast.

As we parents discuss the war news in the family, let us learn to do it calmly and in a matter of fact way, not dwelling on details which stir up the feelings. Nor do I believe we should talk about it much, especially before children. Too much family talk about the war will hinder rather than help win. Every one of us is ready to go whenever or wherever called, in defense of our nation. But in the family, we need to go about our work in a normal fashion. More than ever before, we need to smile and laugh and have good times together in the home.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — There are about 40,000 automobile dealers in the United States. They gave employment to upwards of 200,000 men. They have on hand, as nearly as I can get from the figures, about 300,000 new automobiles bought in the ordinary course of business before there were any restrictions—about one-half billion dollars worth of new cars.

Gen. Johnson.

Now under government regulation they can't sell them except under impossible conditions. They have to store them and pay for it, pay interest on what they owe for them (which can't go on forever) and of course, eventually give up their business.

The latter they seem to accept without a whimper. But it is hard to see why the government has any interest in freezing their stocks in such a way as to ruin their whole investment and throw forty thousand men, including only employers, out of business taking the capital with which they might enter new work—besides taking the jobs away from 160,000 more.

These are new cars with new tires. They are not going to consume any more rubber or chromium or steel and, "frozen" from sale are of no value to the government—unless the intention is to scrap them and give the owners 5 per cent of their value.

Our constitution is very broad in the power it has given the government to take private property for public use. There is only one little string to the gift. It may not be "taken" without just compensation.

There are many ways of getting around that. Most of them center around the meaning of the word "taking." If the taking is only incidental to the exercise of some other power the courts have sometimes said that compensation is not due.

But these are usually extreme cases where the claimant is trying to put something over. There is no aspect of that kind in this case. These automobiles are as clearly taken as though the dealer's door had been padlocked, and for the life of me I can't see any good or useful reason in doing it.

This is only one class of case. I personally know of dozens like it. This column foresaw this development and raised a squawk about it before many of these restrictions were applied.

Shortly afterward a small business division was set up in Washington under Mr. Odlum. But its purpose was primarily to get the big production contracts split up into "bits and pieces" and to give the small manufacturer some work on which to survive.

Mostly it was a pitiful flop, although I do know of cases where manufacturers who were real go-getters converted their shops and continued to live. But these were manufacturers. Automobile dealers are merchants.

You can no more expect such a merchant to turn his establishment into a machine shop overnight than you can expect a firm of eminent lawyers to hang out a shingle as a partnership of physicians and surgeons.

This case is a stinker—government at its worst. The administration ought either to buy these cars at cost and hold them for its many unknown future uses or let them be sold. We make no bones in handing out to almost any good neighbor as many millions as there are but Uncle Sam's niece is Little Orphan Annie and his nephew is Oliver Twist.

If the government doesn't want to buy the cars itself, why doesn't it let these dealers clean out their meager stocks—to the harm of no one?

When I think of stupid, dumbbell action like this, I begin to see why there are so many inexperienced pipe-smoking, tweed-wearing, dirty-finger-nailed "experts."

They are the real Washington parasites—only the right word is termites and you don't need to worry about housing for them. Just let them crawl back into the wood-work

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

It Ain't Necessarily So.

ON Broadway and on the by-paths of Broadway you can't take a person by his face—or even by his two-faced—value. You can't believe all of what you see or much of what you hear in the night-owl district, and putting two and two together is the least accurate way of finding the right answer.

Kilgallen

Because life is often like a Gershwin song, and you're apt to find that things AIN'T NECESSARILY SO.

For instance, a few days ago George Raft came to Manhattan to do a guest shot on Charles Martin's radio show. And all during the highly ominous airing of the play, "Brother Orchid," a tense young man stood on the stage a few feet away from Raft, saying nothing, while the other actors eyed him a bit nervously.

This dark, unsmiling, slender fellow was the highly publicized "Killer" Gray, Raft's bodyguard George, since reaching stardom, has never made a picture without letting "Killer" do a bit in it. And you seldom see George at a cafe without "Killer" at his table.

"Bodyguard" is what they call "Killer," but George never did need a bodyguard. That was his own special forte back in the days of early Prohibition. "Killer" Gray is just his pal—a good companion. But he always had one minor, annoying fault. When any one was telling a story, it was his delight to step in fast and throw the punch line away before the narrator could finish. He was, in other words, a gag killer. And so the nickname—and so the legend. And today in Hollywood, and even in some New York circles, there is a widely held belief that "Killer's" nickname had a more sinister origin.

But it ain't necessarily so.

It's that way everywhere you go . . . Powerful Jack Dempsey speaks in the tiny, high diffident voice of Bre'r Rabbit. . . . Damon Runyon, who writes knowingly of lads who belt the grape, bows to coffee as his strongest brew. . . . Mel Ott, manager-captain of the swaggering ball-playing Giants, says yes, sir, respectful-like when he talks to man or boy. . . . Little Tommy Dix comes on stage in "Best Foot Forward" looking like an eighth-grade cherub, opens his mouth and sings like Ezio Pinza. . . . Freddy Martin is on his way to making a mint via his piano concerto recording—but he can't play the piano.

So you see, it ain't necessarily so.

MOODS AFFECT TOES, FINGERS SCIENCE FINDS

Experiments Show Expansion, Contraction of Ear Lobes, Too, In Health Changes.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Wide World Science Editor)

NEW ORLEANS—Some of the mysterious ways in which the mind controls health are becoming legible on the surface of the human body in experiments at the Tulane university school of medicine.

They are detected with instruments which measure unseen surface movements and changes.

A new laboratory has been equipped, including a soundproof, air-conditioned, restful room where a person may read, visit, be happy or worried, while remote control devices in another room record the significant surfaces changes of the body.

The project is directed by William A. Sodeman, M. D., and George E. Burch, M. D.

Although the instruments read only what occurs at the surface, their soundings are far more than skin-deep. They record the action of the peripheral vascular system—the network of billions of capillary channels near the surface carrying blood and other fluids. Blushes and pallor are familiar effects in this vascular system.

More interesting are the unseen things already found at Tulane and at the Rockefeller Institute by Dr. Burch in cooperation with Doctors A. E. Cohn and Charles Newman.

Toes, fingers and ear lobes continually are slightly expanding and contracting. There are about 70 changes a minute due to heartbeats; 10 to 18 more a minute with breathing; two to four a minute coming from the involuntary nervous system's control over the network vessels.

Further, superimposed on all these are two more longer rhythms.

One takes two or three minutes, the other 30 minutes to an hour. These are due to blood shifting from inside the body toward the outside and back again. They seem to be a massaging effect.

These are all involuntary. But all are modified by the state of the mind. Worry, fear, anger and mental effort affect them. Nutrition also plays a part, and here again the mind control steps in to take a hand.

Anything that throws the rhythms out of balance may cause a temporary upset. Chronic upsets lead to impairment of health.

Some persons have large waves of expansion, others small. Some persons' waves are irregular. But every person tends to stick to his own type of pulsation pattern.

Senility reduces all the rhythms. They become quieter. High blood pressure makes the rhythms more irregular.

BANK TELLER TRAPS ROBBER

Snares Man Who Admits He Took $13,000 In Checks In Memphis

CLEVELAND —(AP)— A man walked up to a window in the Central National bank and asked Teller Edward T. Gough to cash a $20 travelers check.

Gough noticed the man's drawl, said that the check had been signed before brought to the window and that the stub still was attached.

Two hours before, bank employes had read a circular saying that Edward L. Topp, jr., 25, was wanted on a Memphis, Tenn., warrant charging that he took $13,600 worth of American Express company travelers checks from the National Bank of Commerce there.

Gough glanced at the circular and asked the man to have the check approved by Assistant Cashier John L. Carlson, then tipped off Guard John A. Nealon.

Carlson looked at the check, saw it was one of those listed on the circular. The guard then escorted the man to a conference room. Five minutes later FBI agents took him into custody.

Carlson said the man admitted having cashed checks taken from the Memphis bank, where he had been employed for eight years. Topp disappeared Jan. 7.

Lee V. Boardman, agent in charge of the Cleveland FBI office, said the man's hotel room yielded checks amounting to $12,036.

REPORTS GAIN

Farm Bureau Says Sales For 1941 Totaled $746,797.

Reports of the largest sales volume in the history of the organization was made yesterday at the annual Richland county Farm Bureau Co-operative association meeting held in the First Methodist church.

W. B. Davis, bureau manager, said the association had done a business of $746,797 during 1941, an increase of $700 from a previous high set in 1937.

Total organization earnings amounted to $16,343 which will be placed in reserve, paid out in dividends and passed along to stockholders in proportion to the amount of material purchased.

Two new members of the board of directors were elected for a three-year term. The board has seven members. Those elected were Warren L. Smith of Butler township and Rolla Uhlich of Jackson township.

Principal speaker of the day was Harold Wilson of the state farm bureau headquarters in Columbus.

Other speakers were W. E. Stough, president; K. E. Snyder manager of the North Central Farm bureau creamery at Shelby; George Ganyard, Richland county farm agent; William S. Barden, a representative of the Farm Bureau Insurance company; and Charles F. Lafer, a representative of the Ashland Production Credit association, a co-operative loan group.

YOUNG, FIRE CAPTAIN, RESIGNS AFTER 23 YEARS OF SERVICE

Bringing to a close 23 years of service with Mansfield's fire department, Capt. Paul G. Young, 105 Massa avenue, tendered his resignation today to Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton.

At the same time, Young informed Fire Chief Charles Seeburger and Capt. Frank Stahl, secretary of the firemen's pension board, that he was retiring from service and applied for pension. The resignation would become effective on March 1.

Young became a member of the department on July 11, 1919.

He went on duty just as the department made its final break with horse-drawn vehicles. The last of the famous old teams had been retired in April, 1919.

During the 23 years he served, the retiring captain saw the city purchase most of the equipment which it relies upon for protection at present. When he went to work, the city had two trucks which it still uses.

Young was made a captain in March, 1929, and has served in that capacity since. He was a member of Mansfield's Company M during World War I, serving with Capt. A. L. Allen on the Mexican border.

Because of his 23 years of service, Young is eligible for a pension of $100 a month. An additional $1.25 per month will be given because he worked one year more than the 22 required for the pension.

PLEDGES $3,050

Optometric Association Aids In Building Drive.

Two days after the start of a campaign to raise $5,400, zone officials of the Ohio State Optometric association reported in Mansfield today that 12 pledges totaling $3,050 or 57 per cent of the total, have been received.

The local campaign is part of the state association's drive to raise $150,000 for a new optometric research and educational building at Ohio State, one of three universities in the United States with a school of optometry.

The local drive, which will continue for six weeks, was launched at a dinner meeting Wednesday evening at the Southern Hotel. Included in Zone 12, one of the 14 in the state, are Mansfield, Ashland, Shelby, Bucyrus, Galion, Marion, and Mt. Vernon.

Dr. C. C. Kidwell, of Ashland, chairman of the zone drive is being assisted by Dr. A. C. Butterfield and Dr. Christine Fernyak of Mansfield; Dr. Glenn Stewart of Shelby; Dr. Harry Kehrer of Bucyrus; Dr. Fred Stengel and Dr. R. C. Price of Marion; and Dr. W. J. Warcham of Mt. Vernon.

Up and Down THE STREET

Vengence for those motorists who can only growl when a passing driver flasses a spotlight in their eyes was meted this week by the state highway patrol. Seeing a driver shining his spot on others cars as he sped along U. S. Route 42, the patrolmen waited until he used the same practice on them and then apprehended him. After they had filed charges in Ashland police court, the driver was fined $15 and costs.

Mansfielders can brush up on all kinds of information concerning the armed forces, civilian defense, and war time skills in the new War Information Center established in the Public Library. A special corner section of the building is devoted to a display of books and pamphlets giving information about the army, navy, coast guard, marines and merchant marines and also information on a wide variety of other subjects. The Center, which will be a library feature for the duration of the war, currently presents material dealing with the consumer, nutrition and women in defense work.

Two of the city's newest traffic patrolmen have already won their spurs. Patrolmen Carl Beard and Charles Letizia only joined the department last Monday but each have made at least one arrest. Beard arrested a forgery suspect while Letizia took a shoplifter into custody. Incidentally, both men celebrate their birthday's this week.

Deciding that it will be a long time to the next holiday, county commissioners today told county officials they may close their offices next Monday in observance of Washington's birthday which falls on Sunday this year. With the real estate and personal tax collections under way, however, Treasurer Charles C. Payne and Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said they would keep their offices open all day Monday for receiving taxes. Deputies in the two offices will be free to take the holiday, the treasurer and auditor said.

RECEIVE FUNDS

$49,583 Sent To Richland Rural Schools.

Boyd Robinson, county superintendent of schools, today distributed $49,583 in state foundation money to 10 Richland county village and rural schools as the first quarterly payment of state money for 1942.

Allocations, made on the basis of school enrollment and local tax duplicates, included:

VETERINARIAN DIES AT ASHLAND

Dr. Harry Ropp Succumbs Thursday Following Brief Illness.

ASHLAND — A veterinarian here for the past 32 years, Dr. Harry D. Ropp, 59, died at his home Thursday following a brief illness.

Born Dec. 22, 1882 in Lattasburg, Dr. Ropp began practice in Ashland in 1910 following graduation from the school of animal surgery at the University of Indiana.

Surviving are his widow, Ada; two daughters, Mrs. Kathryn J. Woodlock, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and Mrs. Georgia Brown, of Chicago; his father, Lewis, and a brother, Virgil, both of Ashland, and two sisters, Mrs. Ray Vandosdall of Ashland, and Mrs. John Correll, of Mansfield.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday at the home. Rev. S. S. Davis, pastor of the Evangelical church, of which he was a member will officiate. Burial will be in Rowsburg cemetery.

DIES AT HOME

J. M. Sturdevant, 97, Succumbs; Funeral Sunday.

GALION — James M. Sturdevant, 97, died here early today at the home of his daughter, Mrs. J. L. Wintermute, following a long illness.

Born in Delaware county he was the last of a family of seven.

Surviving besides his daughter, with whom he made his home, are two grandchildren and six great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Sunday at the Volk funeral home. Rev. W. N. Robertson, pastor of the First Methodist church will officiate. Burial will be in Sunbury cemetery.

SEEN READY TO FOLLOW SENATE LEAD

Upper House Revokes Measure With Overwhelming 75 to 5 Vote.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—Speedy house action to repeal congressional pensions was foreseen today following the overwhelming senate vote of 75 to 5 to revoke a proposal which aroused nationwide clamor.

The senate attached the Byrd amendment for repeal as a "rider" to a bill to continue pay and allowances of missing and captured American soldiers, sailors and marines, and sent the bill to the house.

House leaders hoped to bring the issue to a vote Monday and thus relieve congress of what leaders frankly described as an embarrassing situation.

The senate, after killing pensions for congress, rejected an amendment of Sen. Downey (D.), Calif., to pay a $30 outright federal pension to all needy persons aged 60 or over, which could be increased by pension grants of states.

The combined proposals embroiled the senate in prolonged debate. While the Downey plan was rejected by a vote of 49 to 22, leaders promised that the finance committee will consider social security revision and increased pensions later in the session.

The senate also attached an amendment offered by Sen. Clark (D.), Mo., increasing base pay of enlisted men or warrant officers in the land, air or naval forces by 20 per cent for service outside the United States, or in the Philippine islands, Hawaii or Midway islands.

The same amendment, which also increased officers' pay 10 per cent for overseas service, is similar to the overseas pay provision of World War I.

The senate turned its back on congressional pension, with some members defending the system but declaring that repeal must be voted to win back confidence of the nation.

Spy Suspect Says Women of U. S. Are Lazy, Inefficient

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Kurt Frederick Ludwig tried to advise his German superiors that his pretty, blond secretary was "like other American women, inefficient and a little bit lazy," along with reports that 4,000 American troops were en route to Iceland and 70,000 British were already there, evidence introduced in his trial revealed today.

He described the secretary, Lucy Boehmler, 18, as "afraid of nothing—except snakes and small, unpleasant animals." Miss Boehmer, who pleaded guilty to spying and freely testified against Ludwig and five others being tried as German espionage agents, had said Ludwig promised her $25 a week, but gave her only excuses.

Thirteen letters seized by British censors at Bermuda also showed the amazing detail with which Ludwig and the others had been able to report on American army dispositions, equipment and British ships in New York harbor last spring.

J. H. SMITH DIES

New London Resident To Be Buried Saturday.

NEW LONDON—A retired railroader, John H. Smith, 74, died here Thursday following a long illness.

Surviving are his widow, Bertha, and seven children.

Funeral services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Saturday at the Sackett funeral home. Rev. G. L. Kettering, pastor of the Baptist church will officiate. Burial will be in Plymouth cemetery.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY BALL CALLED OFF

Annual Affair Sponsored By Ashland Firemen Is Cancelled.

ASHLAND — Although Washington's Birthday will be observed in Ashland this year, one event which has marked the birthday anniversary of the first president of the United States here for more than fifty years, will be missing.

It is the Fireman's ball, which has been sponsored by the Volunteer Fire department on Washington's birthday for 56 years according to Harry Schulz, one of Ashland's oldest fire-fighters.

Volunteer fire department members in cancelling the annual ball this year say it is because of the war—that the donations solicited for dance tickets are much better spent this year for the Red Cross, Defense Stamps and Bonds.

And because they will have no dance, the firemen will not have their annual banquet, which was provided by funds from the dance.

Back in the '80s the Firemen's ball was the outstanding social event of the city. Leading citizens were active in the Volunteer fire department and there was a Firemen's hall in the town hall where the yearly banquet and dance was held.

When the town hall was destroyed and the opera house built, there was a Firemen's hall on the third floor. In recent years the dances, the banquet having been dispensed with some years ago, have been held at the Armory.

In recent years the event had lost some of its social grandeur, but it was always attended by a large number and Ashland firemen had used it as a means of financing convention trips, insurance, and flower fund.

MARK WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

BUCYRUS—Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Shawk, Brokensword residents, will observe their 50th wedding anniversary at their home Sunday by entertaining their two daughters and their families at dinner. Open house will be held for their friends and relatives in the afternoon and evening.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Shawk are natives of Crawford county. Mr. Shawk's grandfather who was among the early settlers in the county, first lived in Bucyrus in a log cabin on the site where the opera house was later built.

FILES $3,500 DAMAGE ACTION

Contending that he was "fraudulently and maliciously charged with embezzlement," Herman L. Pearce, 171 Poplar street, today filed a $3,500 damage suit against Curtis Bechtel and the Alfred Nickles Bakery, Inc. Bechtel is manager of the bakery here.

Pearce, former employe of the bakery, states in his petition that he was falsely accused of embezzling $97.53 of the bakery's funds and was forced to spend two hours in the city jail following his arrest last Jan. 5. The charge was dismissed following a hearing in municipal court Jan. 16.

Pearce contends that his credit and reputation were injured by the arrest and accusation. He left the bakery about two years ago. The law firm of Anderson and Will represents him.

SEEKS $10,000 IN DAMAGE SUIT

Bellevue Woman Files Action In Common Pleas Court at Ashland.

ASHLAND—Damages of $10,000 for personal injuries received in an automobile accident are sought in a suit filed in Ashland common pleas court by Ethel Odgers of Bellevue against Bessie Kaufman, also of Bellevue, driver of the car in which Mrs. Odgers was a passenger when she received her alleged injuries.

The plaintiff alleged in her petition that Mrs. Charles Hakes and Mrs. Mary Harpster with the defendant, all members of the Methodist church of Bellevue, were en route to Canton to attend a church meeting on Sept. 26, 1941, when the defendant's automobile collided with another at the intersection of 224 and 250 in northern Ashland county.

Action for partition of real estate has been instituted in common pleas court by Thomas P. Stentz against Allie Cooper, et al. The plaintiff claims one-half ownership of 160 acres in Mohican township with Mrs. Cooper, the defendant, owner of the other half, as heirs of Anthony Stentz, who died Dec. 10, 1924.

A divorce has been granted in Ashland common pleas court to Nancy Baird in her suit against LeRoy Baird on grounds of gross neglect. A property settlement of the court was approved by the court. The plaintiff was restored to her maiden name of Tucker.

Judgment of $162.50 claimed to have been overcharged due to a defective meter at a service station is asked in a suit filed by P. C. Fritzinger against the Ohio Public Service company.

A temporary injunction has been granted R. R. Teeter in his suit against P. C. Fritzinger enjoining the defendant from further construction of a residence on Edgehill avenue until a suit for permanent injunction is settled. It is alleged that the defendant's residence is being constructed closer to the street than is permitted by building restrictions. Co-plaintiff in the suit, Harry Brubaker, was denied an injunction because his lots are not part of the subdivision in question.

SCOUT LEADERS OUTLINE PLANS FOR THE YEAR

Galion District Council Has Meeting Thursday at High School.

GALION—Many activities for the coming year were discussed at a meeting of the Galion District Council of the Johnny Appleseed Area Boy Scouts at Senior high school Thursday night.

This was the first meeting since the newly elected chairman, Roger Godfrey, has been in office. He presided for the session and named various committees to plan work.

Those named to the Leadership Training committee were M. A. Povenmire who will serve as chairman, S. D. VanMeter, E. R. Pickering and R. W. Patterson.

Henry Herbig was chosen to head the camping activities. He will name his own committee.

The old finance committee will meet soon to name a chairman, and plan a campaign for raising funds.

Under the direction of Charles Lamb, local fireman and Scout leader, Boy Scouts will sponsor another campaign to collect scrap magazines, old metals, papers and rubber, to be used for defense. The boys recently conducted a similar campaign. Proceeds were turned over to the high school band uniform fund. Funds from this second campaign will go to finance the Boy Scout movement.

Announcement was made that all Boy Scouts in line for advancement are invited to the Court of Honor to be held in Mansfield on the night of Feb. 28.

The Galion Garden club also has extended an invitation to Scouts to attend a nature study meeting at the public library on March 2.

Warning to Mothers:
WORMS
CAN CAUSE TROUBLE
Learn the truth! Anybody, anywhere, can have roundworms. And they can cause great distress inside your child without your even knowing what is wrong.
Many pale, nervous, underweight children have bowel worms. Other innocent-looking warning signs are uneasy stomach, fidgeting, itchy seat, nose-picking.
Don't take chances with roundworms! Get Jayne's Vermifuge today! It is America's best known proprietary worm medicine—used by millions, for over a century. Jayne's expels stubborn roundworms, yet acts gently. If there are no worms, it works just as a mild laxative. Insist on Jayne's Vermifuge.

Conducts Services

Major Joseph Hughes of Akron, now conducting nightly revival services at the Salvation Army citadel, for 45 years has been in active service with the Salvation Army organization and won citations for bravery under fire in France during the World war. He received his commission from General Evangeline Booth in the Grecian theater, London, in 1894, and retired from service in 1936 when he reached the age limit. Since that time he has consistently engaged in evangelistic work. The officer will speak at the citadel each day through Sunday at 7:45 p. m.

AAA Head Says U.S. to Use Wheat To Make Alcohol

With the nation's corn needed for livestock feed to help boost food production during the war, the federal government will soon begin using its surplus wheat in the manufacture of alcohol, formerly made from corn, Guy L. Taylor, county AAA chairman, said today.

Huge quantities of wheat taken over by the U. S. department of agriculture as security for loans to farmers will be diverted to the manufacture of alcohol. The grain will be sold at prices ranging from 80 to 91 cents per bushel, Taylor said.

The AAA chairman said it was doubtful if any Richland county wheat will be used very soon for alcohol making, since the Commodity Credit corporation, a government loan agency, is holding a comparatively small amount of grain from this county.

He said wheat can be substituted for corn with only minor adjustments in the processes used for making alcohol from corn. A slightly higher yield of alcohol may be obtained from wheat than from corn, he added.

The revised program will help the government use up its wheat surplus and make more corn available for hogs, cattle, and poultry, it was pointed out.

NURSING CLASS TO START SOON

Physical Examination Blanks Issued To 23 as Opening of Course Nears.

That the first class in Nurses' Aid training will start within the next two weeks appeared certain today as physical examination blanks were issued to 23 women by the Nurses Aid committee of which Mrs. George L. Draffan is chairman.

These blanks will be filled out by the family physician of each applicant and will then be sent to Dr. Leopold Adams, chairman of the Medical Advisory committee under Civilian Defense for approval.

The 80-hour training course will be given at Mansfield General hospital five consecutive days a week from 6 p. m. to 10 p. m. according to present plans. Miss Mabel Selfe, superintendent of nurses, will be in charge of instruction.

Applications for training continue to be received at the Red Cross executive office and it is likely that a second class may be started soon after the first.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

That mournful Mehock man, who's no longer known as merry Harry, admits he can't make too much sense in the chain of events in which he's recently become entangled.

Hard on the heels of a warning from State High School Athletic Commissioner H. R. Townsend that Harry's pride and joy, the Mansfield Relays, was doomed to ruin by a new ruling barring interstate competition, Mehock received an invitation from Townsend to serve on a state track board now in process of organization.

Purpose of the board is to promote track, in line with a national defense program to keep sports going at top pitch.

"What is this?" asks the bewildered Mehock. "They take away all opportunity for high class track meets, and then ask us to promote bigger and better meets. It's a good trick if you can do it."

* * *

But Mehock expects to attend the dutch lunch in Columbus tomorrow when the state track committee will be formed. He "can go along with a gag, sister."

Now that Criterion 10-b has been passed by the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, and has finally been brought to the attention of the Mansfield Relays committee, resulting in cancellation of the nation's best high school track meet for this year, let's lock at the argument which the educators used in passing this new rule.

Criterion 10-b forbids secondary school competition in inter-state meets in music, speech, commercial subjects and athletics. Back of the rule is the power of the North Central association to withdraw approval of credits of any school conducting or participating in such a meet.

* * *

The educators argued that long trips by musical organizations, debaters, typewriter tappers and athletes were taking children out of school too much and that they were missing an important part of their education.

These children, they maintained, were entering college without the proper high school educational background.

* * *

Phooey! We've been told for years that these trips were educational in themselves, as well as inspirational, and tended to develop the children into leaders, and that this development is the main purpose of the educational system.

Perhaps some band members in the past haven't been fully prepared to enter college. I wouldn't know.

But pupils making speech and debate and commercial teams for inter-state competition must have been up in their studies to win places on those teams. No other kind of student could make those teams.

And high school athletes must maintain a fairly high grade average to be eligible for athletic teams. They certainly aren't missing much schooling and still get those grades.

I wouldn't be surprised if the N. C. A. legislates some day against sickness because it keeps the kids out of school.

Only 3 Tribesmen Remain Unsigned

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Catcher Joe Heving and Jeff Heath are the only Indian regulars who still have not signed on the dotted line.

Now that 31 players have sent in their contracts, the Cleveland ball club has only six to go, but three are rookies and Vice President Roger Peckinpaugh expects little trouble with them.

Pitcher Heving and Outfielder Walker have joined Heath in sending back their documents with requests for more money.

There are no official figures but it is reported the 33-year-old Walker got about $11,000 last season and was offered $10,000. Heving's salary was believed to have been cut from $7,500 to $5,000. Walker's batting average last season was .283. Heving, who is 37, won five and lost two in pitching 71 innings as a relief hurler.

Record Crowd Expected

Tygers Meet Massillon In Evenly Matched Tilt.

MANSFIELD high school's scheduled basketball season comes to a close and a climax in the two games coming up, with Massillon's Tigers tonight and Canton McKinley's Bulldogs next Friday night, and both tilts are scheduled at Senior high gym.

Basketball rivalry between the Tygers and the two Stark county teams has paralleled the gridiron rivalry, and for the past several seasons Mansfield-Massillon games have been decided by close margins.

The Tygers and Tigers appear evenly matched for tonight's battle, which is expected to draw the biggest crowd of the season.

Early in the season Massillon won a one-point overtime game at Canton, and recently McKinley scored a three-point win at Massillon. Way back in December Mansfield was barely nosed out at Canton at a time when the Tygers were suddenly weakened by the loss of Jack Shiplet, benched by a charlie horse.

Not only on the record but also on size Mansfield and Massillon teams seem well matched. Each club has two big boys, Mansfield's Paul Dietzel and Bob Winbigler matching Massillon's Joe DeMando and Williams.

DeMando, star football end, replaced big Horace Gillom in the first game of last year's state cage tournament when the Tigers went to the semi-finals.

Key men of the Tiger machine are the veterans Mickey McDade and Buttermore. It was McDade, who got hot with one-hand shots, who supplied the spark for Massillon's six-point win over the Tygers last year.

Coach Vern Hoffman of the Tygers has decided to keep record-scoring Bob Winbigler at his forward post, and has announced his lineup tonight as: Romano and Altamonte, guards, Dietzel, center, and Winbigler and Hahn, forwards. Robertson will be available for relief work at a guard, and Al Hager at forward, and further subs must come up from the reserve team. Lamoreux, Baker and McBride probably will have first team uniforms tonight.

The reserves are prepared to "dedicate" their preliminary tilt with Massillon tonight to Coach Vere Smith, who may be masterminding the Tyger club for the last time Vere is "under the gun" for a navy call.

The preliminary tilt is set for 7 p. m., and the main game probably will get under way about 8:15. Officials will be Earl Gross of New Philadelphia and C. W. Rupp of Akron.

Hunt's, Billiards Win Cage Matches

Hunt's News and Rex Biliards won their games in the Friendly House Senior White league yesterday, the Newsies trimming Daley's 33-29, while the Rexes defeated Sferto's 35-31.

* * *

High scorers were Joe Wentz of Daley's with 15 points and Frank Jacka of the Rex club with 22 tallies.

Women Flock to Rifle Tournament

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The feminine influence will be felt in a second degree when the annual Ohio indoor championship rifle matches open tomorrow on the Olentangy rifle range.

More women than ever before will be on the firing line to help Dorothea Kelly of Akron defend the state individual championships she has won the past two years. Miss Kelly outshot 239 male sharpshooters last year to become the first Ohio sharpshooter to capture the individual titles two years in a row.

P. D. Lark, publicist for the Ohio Rifle and Pistol association, lodges an entry list of 300 for the two-day program of 17 title matches.

BARONS PREPARE FOR PITTSBURGH HORNETS

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The Cleveland Barons, fired by two shutouts over formidable opponents in their last three games and presently tied with Hershey for the leadership of the Western division of the American hockey league, were working out today in preparation for a two-game home-and-home series with the Pittsburgh Hornets.

The Barons go to the Hornets' nest Saturday night and then play host to the Pittsburghers at the Arena here Sunday night.

Bump Leaders In B-League

Shutout Defeats For Top Teams Customary.

Commercial "B" league bowlers have a new game called "Bump off the leaders." For the past three weeks the team in first place has been the victim of a 3-0 defeat, and a new leader has stepped to the front only to be knocked off the same way the following week.

* * *

It happened again last night. Mansfield Rug & Linoleum stepped up and bounced Ingram Martin for three games, and the league now has three teams tied for first, and the seventh place team is only four games off the pace.

Deadlocked for first now are Jones Chris-Crafts, Ringside Nite club and Ingram Martin.

F. Burton took scoring honors last night with a 614 total on games of 171-223-220, while H. Johns had high game of 235. Ringside had high team total of 2820 and high game of 958.

Appleseed Trips Butler

Meyers and Swihart Lead Pioneer Scoring Attack.

Johnny Appleseed junior high school sailed through the Butler reserves yesterday, 31-19, behind the ten point shooting of both Les Meyers and Murray Swihart.

Trailing, 13-12, at the end of the half, the Pioneers caged 16 points in the third quarter to lead, 28-17.

Meyers collected his tallies on four baskets and two free throws while Swihart caged five baskets.

The Appleseed reserves won their game, 7-5.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(Wide World)—Wonder what will happen to Yale football if the Elis hire Clark Shaughnessy, who looks like the most likely candidate for the coaching job? . . . Loyola of New Orleans and Chicago U., where he used to coach, both dropped football and the prospects don't look any too bright at Stanford if that ban on crowds over 5,000 stands and if the navy takes over part of the campus and athletic facilities . . . Oh, well, didn't Billy Phelps Wisecrack that Yale gave up football two years ago?

HOT STOVE WARMUP

Rationing has hit semi-pro baseball. Team rosters will be limited to 16 players for district, state and national tournaments, and the big playoff at Wichita, Kas., in August will be held down to 24 teams.

Batavia, (N. Y.) is the first town to name its baseball park after General MacArthur . . . Joe Vosmik, the old Indian and Red socker, may manage the Canton (O.) Middle Atlantic league club this year.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

HOOP-LA

Lew Burton of the N. Y. Journal-American tells one about the high school basketball star who visited a college for an examination for a scholarship . . . A friend asked how he had made out . . . "You know," the kid replied. "For the first five minutes I couldn't do a thing, then I got going and sank five baskets in a row."

'Don't Dictate To Ball Club'

Ohio Manager of Cards Says It Can't Be Done.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—By his own admission, William (Billy the Kid) Southworth has learned the hard way that you can't be a dictator to a ball club.

Because, says the manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, "You can't beat players down these days. I found that out in '29."

Billy the Kid slipped off his overalls out at his Sunbury farm, got into a suit, kissed the wife and child goodbye, and left for St. Petersburg, Fla., last night to start his club on its spring training stint.

Riding to the depot, Southworth reflected a bit on his managerial chore, and remembered back in '29 when he bossed the Cardinals during the last half of a disastrous campaign that had started well enough.

"I wasn't a good manager," he said. "I was too iron-handed. I acted like a dictator and you can't treat ball players that way. Then, too, many of the Cardinals that year had played alongside of me. That was mighty tough—for me and the players.

"I don't believe in bawling out a player before the whole club. If one of the boys makes a mistake it's best to go to him and talk it over by ourselves.

"Sometimes I ask a player who has made a mistake if it's okay to talk it over in front of the other players as an educational lesson. 'Sure,' he'll say.

"'You can't beat down players these days. McGraw did it and got away with it. But I'm not a McGraw."

BARRY CONTINUES AS USC FOOTBALL COACH

LOS ANGELES—(U.P.)—Justin M. (Sam) Barry, who took over University of Southern California's declining football fortunes as successor to the late Howard Jones, will continue as head coach for another season.

His appointment was announced last night by President Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid, who said he and the university athletic board considered Barry's work last season satisfactory.

Loop Champs Handed Upset

Bowman Cagers Swamped By Carpenter, 27 to 7.

When Mansfield grade school cagers score upsets, they don't fool, they really score upsets.

Last night in the grade tournament Carpenter, seventh-placers in the league race, swamped the league champion Bowmans, 27-7. Bowman had taken the league title with 17 victories and only one defeat.

And Brinkerhoff, winner of only two games against 16 defeats in the league season, went through three overtime periods to bump off Bushnell 9-7.

Other tourney games saw Woodland edge Western 11-8, and Prospect beat West Fifth 22-4.

Carpenter will meet Newman Tuesday at 8 p. m. at John Simpson in the championship semi-final tilt, and the winner will tangle with Woodland the following Saturday at 2:30 p. m. at Hedges.

In the consolation tourney, Brinkerhoff meets Hedges Monday at 8 p. m. at Appleseed, and the winner will meet Prospect at 1:30 p. m. Saturday at Hedges.

WILL COACH WITHOUT PAY TO SAVE GAME

NEW YORK—(INS)—Dr. Mal Stevens, football coach of New York university, the N. Y. U. Heights Daily News revealed today.

Trustees of the university have been considering abandoning the game because of the lack of success of Violet teams since football was de-emphasized and the subsequent lack of gate receipts.

Capital Presses Mounts

If Mt. Union fulfills expectations and grabs off its second consecutive Ohio conference basketball championship, Capital's Lutherans may howl that they were robbed by the schedule makers.

The Caps and Purple Raiders were tied in the title race today with 11 wins and one loss each.

Capital took advantage of Heidelberg's third period slump and chalked up a 48 to 41 victory at Tiffin last night. The Lutherans still have to play Ohio Northern whom they barely beat a few nights ago. A triumph in this game would give Capital 12 conference victories against one loss.

The Mounts, with 11 wins already wrapped up, still have to play Oberlin and Kenyon, neither of which has much chance of stopping the champs.

So it looks as if the Purple Raiders might wind up the season with 13 victories and one defeat. Only a pair of upsets can put Cap on top.

In the only other conference tilt, Muskingum exploded for 12 points in the final six minutes to down Denison 45 to 39 at New Concord.

The Big Red was on top 21-20 at the half and was out front 36-30 in the second before the Muskies got the range. Center McDowell rang up four buckets in a row to put the home team ahead. Muskie Guard Bob Holtsclaw earned scoring honors with 17 points.

Ohio university's Bobcats staged a drive in the last 10 minutes to humble Marietta 57-46. The river team led at the half 29 to 28. Bobcat Center Pete Lalich scored 18 points.

Dayton university's cagers, playing Wittenberg at Springfield, battered out a 55-50 win in a free scoring game which saw the count knotted five times. The half-time score was 30-30. Dayton's Bob Kavanaugh looped 18 points.

Miami university wound up its season by trampling Wilmington 62-38 for its sixth win in 14 starts. Ralph Palaia of Miami turned in 21 points for high man honors.

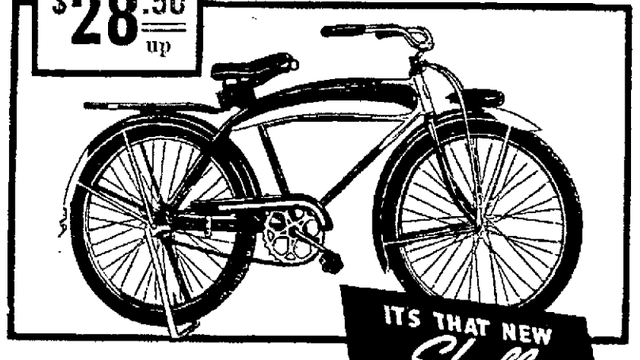

Akron took its first victory in five attempts to knock over Kent State. The Zippers won at Kent 58-39. Calvin college of Grand Rapids, Mich., wrecked the final home appearance for De Sales, with a 61 to 49 conquest. Big Alvin Bielema hooked 28 points for the Knights.

PLANS FOR LOUIS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla.—(AP)—Promoter Mike Jacobs says he plans to pit Billy Conn against Joe Louis this year if conditions allow it. "Billy Conn's showing against Tony Zale the other night warrants a return match," Jacobs said.

Mile Run Beckons To Dodds

Ashland College Track Star Abandons 2-Mile.

By STEVE O'LEARY

BOSTON — (AP) — Gil Dodds, former Ashland college great, whose two-mile threat more or less collapsed last Saturday is going to take one more crack at little Greg Rice—and then shift his talents to the mile.

The bespectacled theological student—who'd never admit it himself—was under terrific pressure last week after all the whooping and hollering over his blazing race against Rice in the Millrose games.

He wasn't keyed mentally for the race and he cracked when the game little Rice panted doggedly on his neck through the middle stages of the Boston A. A. two-mile and then cut loose with the typical last-three-lap burst which has marked the string of victories of the former Notre Dame ace.

That's Coach Jack Ryder's angle of the race in which Rice licked Dodds by a good 50 yards.

"Dodds still has an 8 50 two mile in his system, mark my words," said Ryder. "It's just a question of pulling it out of him and maybe we can do just that Saturday at the New York A. C. games."

The veteran coach indicated that Dodds will be running back to his Millrose games race next Saturday. Dodds had worried about letting down Ryder and his Boston admirers in the Boston A. A. games and discovered that, as a result, he had let them down.

"He won't have that on his mind anymore," said Ryder. "He'll be running the race of his short career, too, because, win or lose, he's going to switch over to the mile after the New York meet."

Rice agreed after his victory Saturday that Dodds ran a smartly judged race and showed the effect of good coaching. He said he clung close to Dodds through the race because he didn't want his rival to pile up the lead he had in New York a week earlier. He thinks Dodds is a great runner.

Well rested, the pair ought to turn in a terrific duel. Rice may be extended enough to lower his own indoor mark of 8 51 1 or perhaps Dodds can come up with that 8:50 two-mile that Ryder was talking about.

Sugar Robinson Meets Max Berger

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Ray Robinson, Harlem's "little Joe Louis," risks boxing's biggest winning streak and a shot at the world's welterweight championship tonight when he battles rugged Maxie Berger in a scheduled 12-round bout at Madison Square Garden.

The 21-year-old Negro is a 4-1 favorite to register his 117th straight victory and his 28th consecutive professional triumph. And the odds are even that he kayoes the former Canadian lightweight and welterweight champion.

FILL YOUR COAL BIN

Here's Three Good Reasons Why:

1. We May Expect Defense Industries To Be Given Preference In Coal and Transportation.
2. At This Time There Is a Surplus of Coal and Cars, and Because of This, Prices Are Low.
3. Rubber and Tires—Are Being Rationed—Oil and Gas May Soon Follow.

Be Wise—Prepare For the Future!

HI TEST . . $8.25 Low ash—high in heat. This coal has been sold in Mansfield for the past twenty years. Its record for dependability is second to none.

KENTUCKY . . $8.00 High Quality Lump Coal. A slow-burning, economical fuel—burns to a fine red ash. A real buy for the money.

ELK RIVER . $7.50 A medium price Lump Coal, that's sure to please.

OHIO LUMP . $6.25 Here's a surprise—a very clean Lump Coal. Ignites readily, slow burning.

STOCKS KEEP BALANCE, SOME EVEN STEP UP

Consumers of Retail Goods Level Off Purchases In Shortage Scare

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — The war news still was a bit confusing market-wise today but stocks generally maintained their balance.

Given a slight early lift were General Motors, Chrysler, Southern Railway, Chesapeake & Ohio, Glenn Martin, Phelps Dodge, Dow Chemical, Union Carbide and North American.

Backward were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Standard Oil (N. J.), Texas Co., General Electric and International Nickel. Allied Chemical dipped to a new 1941-42 low. Numerous issues held at their final levels of Thursday.

The Japanese thrust in the Southwest Pacific, in addition to intensification of the attack on MacArthur in the Philippines, served to keep most bullish forces under wraps, brokers said. There was still some bidding on the idea the list may have been oversold.

Trend students scanned the survey of Dun & Bradstreet which said that "scare" purchasing by consumers who feared shortages and rising prices had flattened out appreciably in retail centers this week.

Those watching stocks of agricultural equipment companies noted forecasts that, due partly to conversion for armament production, net earnings for most manufacturers in this line during 1942 may be under the year before. Smaller margins on military work, plus mounting taxes and operating expenses, were among factors expected to restrict profits.

FACES DETECTOR

Mansfielder In Toledo For 'Lie' Examination Today.

A Mansfield bookkeeper was taken to Toledo today with city detectives and Prosecutor Harold Lutz to undergo a lie detector test in an attempt to clear himself of suspicion in the reported embezzlement of $800 from his employer.

The prosecutor said the man, who is past 60 years old, readily agreed to the test as an opportunity to prove his innocence. If the detector indicates the bookkeeper is telling the truth, no charge will be filed against him, Lutz said.

No charge has been filed in connection with the case, but police and the prosecutor have been working on it for several days. Identity of the firm which reported the loss of the money was withheld by authorities.

SENATORS ASK COAST DEFENSE

Call For Protection Despite Stimson Word It Might Retard Offensive.

war the most important step is to prepare an offensive against the Axis.

Walsh, chairman of the senate naval affairs committee, said that while nothing should be done to interfere with far-reaching military strategy, 'inadequate" coast defenses ought to be strengthened speedily. Johnson said he could see no reason why "some of the strength we have yielded so generously to Europe cannot be diverted to our own shores."

Byrd said he felt that the American people ought to be defended from attack to the extent that it is necessary, although he was willing to leave the disposition of forces up to the military departments.

Secretary Stimson told a press conference yesterday this country could expect attacks "all along our coasts and other places" similar to the Axis submarine forays on Aruba island in the Dutch West Indies.

He said it was likely that "pressure" would be exerted by "thoughtless persons" to scatter American forces to meet such attacks. Such a course, he declared, would be the surest way he knew of losing the war. What this country needed to do, he continued, was to mass its forces to carry the war to the enemy.

Johnson commented that it was "all nonsense" to talk about bringing pressure when he and others of like views have been demanding only that adequate protection be given to American areas. Johnson and a group of west coast senators and congressmen have met frequently to voice demands that they be informed of measures being taken to defend the area they represent.

Ohio Senators In Line On Repealer

WASHINGTON —(INS)— Ohio's two Republican senators, Robert A. Taft and Harold H. Burton, both voted in favor of an amendment to repeal pensions provisions recently enacted for members of congress. The senators voted against a proposal for a federal pension of $30 monthly for all needy persons of 60 and over.

FDR Sets Up Unified Tactical Command

WASHINGTON —(UP)— President Roosevelt has established a unified tactical command over American land, sea and air forces, well informed sources said today.

It is an informal staff headed by the president himself as commander-in-chief of the armed forces and has been in existence since a few weeks after the United States entered the war, the informants told the United Press.

Members of the command are Gen. George C. Marshall, army chief-of-staff; Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of the fleet; Lieut. Gen. Henry H. Arnold, chief of the army air force, and Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations.

FACE CHARGES

SHELBY — Joe Hallabrin and Harry Winn of Shelby were to appear before Mayor W. R. Morris's court today on charges of failing to stop their cars for school buses unloading students.

The affidavit against Hallabrin was filed by Glenn Cotter, and against Winn by Perry McKinney. Both are drivers of Shelby district school buses.

'Most Valuable' at NYA Center

Charles M. Richardson, 22 (at right in photograph above) has been designated the trainee "Most Valuable to War Production" among 150 enrollees in the National Youth Administration Charles Mill Resident center near Mansfield. He is being congratulated by James D. Justice of Columbus, area director. Richardson, who lives in Newark, has been at Charles Mill since last October. He is the center's police chief and an assistant in the machine shop where NYA trains young men from all parts of Ohio for war production work. He is one of 10 in the state in the running for the title of most valuable trainee in Ohio.

Reports Bike Stolen—Dale Kilgore, 139 Poplar street, reported to Mansfield police yesterday that his bicycle had been stolen while he was attending a movie at a downtown theater.

Named Again—Miss Martha F. Gerstmeyer, Mansfield, today had been reappointed Richland county common pleas court stenographer and shorthand reporter by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston. Her appointment extends to Jan. 1, 1943.

Purse Taken—Mrs. Anna McVicar, 197 Buckingham street, told police that her purse containing $17 had been stolen yesterday while she was working in the kitchen of the First Christian church on West Fourth street. Mrs. McVicar said that she saw a youth running from a nearby room where she had left her coat and purse. Andrew Johnson, janitor, found the purse on the stairway but the contents had been removed.

Given Jail Sentences — Gus Hoppenberg, Findlay, and E. G. Aldridge, Dayton, were sentenced to 30 days each in Richland county jail and fined $100 and costs today after being arraigned in municipal court on a charge of petit larceny. The men were arrested upon the complaint of A. C. Frost, manager of the Kresge 5-and-10-cent store, who charged they had stolen 10 pairs of men's sox yesterday afternoon.

BROTHERS DROWN

Father of New-Born Son Dies as Car Falls Into Canal.

MIDDLETOWN — (AP) — Two brothers, one of them the father of a new-born son, drowned today when their automobile plunged from Germantown road into the Hydraulic canal just north of the city.

They were Elmo Buckner, 24, and Elwood Buckner, 18, both of (Oxford Road) west of Middletown. A witness who said the Bruckner car passed another vehicle just before leaving the highway, was sought by police who, with firemen worked for an hour to recover the bodies.
